Since the COVID-19 shutdowns may have shut down the majority of our beloved St. Patrick's Day celebrations, we are celebrating the Irish holiday by taking inspiration from this adorable dynamic duo.

In an adorable video clip that was published by Galway Now Magazine back in 2016, a woman can be seen tap dancing in the street for tips when she is suddenly joined by a pint-sized fan.

The inquisitive toddler takes a few tentative steps forward from the sidelines to watch the dancer's moves before enthusiastically joining in—and although the little girl's motor control doesn't seem advanced enough to keep up with her counterpart, the resulting jig might be the cutest thing you'll see today.
