“Despite Moderna’s cheery press release this week, the clinical trial results for its groundbreaking COVID vaccine could not be much worse.”

“The vaccine, developed and championed by Anthony Fauci and financed by Bill Gates, used an experimental mRNA technology...”

“Three of the 15 human guinea pigs in the high dose cohort (250 mcg) suffered a ‘serious adverse event’ within 43 days of receiving Moderna’s jab. Moderna...acknowledged that three volunteers developed Grade 3 systemic events defined by the FDA as ‘Preventing daily activity and requiring medical intervention’.”

“Moderna allowed only exceptionally healthy volunteers to participate in the study. A vaccine with those reaction rates could cause grave injuries in 1.5 billion humans if administered to ‘every person on earth’.” (Robert F Kennedy, Jr., Children's Health Defense, May 22, 2020, "Vaccine Trial Catastrophe: Moderna Vaccine has 20% 'Serious' Injury Rate in High Dose Group")

But who cares, right? Full steam ahead.

In many articles over the years, I've provided evidence that vaccines are unnecessary, destructive, and useless. This article is about something else: how the planners are shaping their scheme for injecting a COVID vaccine into the bodies of the global population. The planners aren't completely stupid, you know. They understand there will be problems. They understand many people will say NO.

Think of their scheme as an intelligence-agency operation. Their architects engage in many discussions; they lay out predictions; they consider options.

"What happens if we flat-out make the vaccine mandatory for everyone?"

Aside from awesome logistical problems, "mandatory for everyone" means the planners have no wiggle room. It becomes difficult to make adjustments in the face of public opposition. They've played their hole card from the get-go.

Heavy enforcement is possible, of course. Bring in the military. Go door to door. For years. Try to track down every refuser and hold them down and shoot them up. Overt police state.

"That could be a bad play. We actually incite more resistance and rebellion with our tactics."

Trying to funnel eight billion people along a single path to a shot in the arm has serious drawbacks. This isn't a low-budget sci-fi thriller on the big screen. The government doesn't just snap its fingers and vaccinate 320 million people in America.

On the opposite end of the spectrum, they could offer a light suggestion that everyone take the COVID shot.

“That’s a loser. All our propaganda and preparation go to waste. We look like wimps. People aren’t going to line up like robots on the basis of a mere suggestion. They’re going to think the pandemic isn’t all that serious anymore. It’ll be like the flu shot. Lots of people will go for it, and lots of people won’t. No good.”

What might an in-between scenario look like—something in the middle.

Define CONDITIONS under which the vaccination is mandatory. Push that, along with heavy encouragement for all people to take the vaccine. Wall to wall propaganda on TV. Widespread shaming, targeting and outing refusers. The usual nonsense stories about people who didn’t take the vaccine and died, or spread the virus to others who died.

“If contact tracing reveals a person has been in close contact with someone who has COVID-19, he/she must be vaccinated, in order to protect the public. A person over 65 who has suffered from any one of several key illnesses must be vaccinated, as a precaution. All hospital and nursing home employees must be vaccinated. Travelers returning from the following locations must be vaccinated before re-entering the country...”

Even here, there will be problems. Too many conditions and the situation is too complex. The public can’t keep track of all the rules. Still, “we must make it work.”

Conditions plus CULTURE—that might be a winner. For example, enlist the assistance of employers and companies. Issue government rewards based on the vaccination rates of employees. Actively lean on employers to make their own tough rules about vaccinations for their workers. Lean hard.

“So, Bob, you’ve been working for us for twenty years. You’re a valued employee. I see you haven’t signed on to take the COVID vaccine. Last Tuesday, in the lunch room, you talked to Susie from accounting about possible dangers of the shot. We simply can't have that, Bob. Now, I understand your questions about the vaccine. There are always questions. You have a choice to make. This is a free country. You can take the shot, or we can't employ you..."

Unlike most of his fellow employees who eagerly opt for the shot, or fold at the first veiled threat, Bob sticks to his guns. He quits his job. Now, all his friends know he's sacrificed a very good salary and the security of his family for some weird principles. Bob is a son a bitch. How could he do this to Kathy and the kids? Shun Bob. Don't talk to him..."

CULTURE.

"Dammit, I think Bob had every right to refuse the vaccine. But if we talk to him, what are our friends going to say? We love Bob, but we can't take the chance..."

"Here at XXX CORP, all our people take the shot proudly. We want the community to know we're in the lead in compliance. We support Governor Gargoyle and his team of public health experts. Our new contact tracing app has built in signals telling you when you're at risk in certain neighborhoods. Visit our Facebook page and learn more."

"Hi, I'm Dr. Julius Meng of the CDC. I want to tell you about a man named Carl. He refused the vaccine and infected his whole warehouse and we had to shut down the company. Right now, Carl is on a ventilator fighting for his life in a hospital...don't be a Carl..."

SHUN THE VILE REFUSERS.

"Did you know you can report certain people who actively refuse the vaccine? We can't forcibly inject them [yet], but we can isolate them when necessary and protect the community. Go to our Facebook page and learn who you can report on and why..."

"We here at YYY Corp, all 32,000 of us, want to salute the nation's contact tracers who are working to keep all of us safe. We know you're out there protecting us 24/7. So we're cutting your insurance premiums by 15 percent across the board, for the next six months, as a gesture of thanks. Remember, America, tracing leads to vaccinating, and that's what we all need—immunity from the virus..."

"Leading our coverage tonight, the CDC has pinpointed three areas in Utah where vaccine refusal has climbed higher in recent weeks. Some estimates place it as high as ten percent. A breakaway church and its pastor have been blamed for spreading conspiracy theories. In accordance with federal conditions under which the COVID vaccine can be mandated, one of those areas has now been designated a 'hot spot.' Local border controls have been set up. Two clinics are prepared to receive people who have turned down the vaccine and are being placed in custody. We now go live to the ER at Buchen Hospital..."

Culture plus conditions.

Outing refusers? "In Houston, a group calling itself COVID Truth has leaked a public-health list of local residents who have so far refused to take the vaccine. Utilizing Facebook posts, 90 names have been exposed. Of course, medical privacy is an issue, but the majority of local citizens seem to be siding with COVID Truth..."

"Shocker. Word on the street is, a Chicago Catholic bishop is prepared to exercise ancient excommunication laws for any of his flock who actively promote refusing the COVID vaccine..."

Culture, plus conditions, plus local mandates. A state governor decides that all new applicants for restaurant business licenses must present a certificate of immunity obtained after vaccination. All hotel workers must receive shots. Schoolteachers must be vaccinated. State by state, piece by piece, a quilt is stitched together. It looks like improvisation (it's supposed to), but state public health officials are carrying out confidential federal CDC orders to advise and lean on governors in specific ways.

"Today, three eastern states reached agreement limiting inter-state travel, deploying a wide-ranging series of highway checkpoints, where officers can demand certificates of immunity..."

"Two major airlines will accept passengers for out-of-state flights only after evidence of vaccination is presented..."

"The governor of Alabama has so far resisted all efforts to make COVID vaccination mandatory under any conditions for residents of the state. However, now, two major meat distributors have decided not to ship beef or pork to Alabama..."

Culture, conditions, local mandates, boycotts.

Of course, some planners will still want a federal order mandating the vaccine for EVERYONE. They want, first and foremost, a police state. They'll do everything they can to cook, fake, and inflate case numbers and death numbers to attain their objective. Bill Gates and his minions definitely want to fake case numbers. One reason? When "adverse events" from the vaccine start piling up, they'll need to label this horrific human wreckage "cases caused by the epidemic COVID virus."

The president of the United States, whoever he is, will say, "We're keeping a careful eye on reports and updates about the success of the vaccine, and new coronavirus cases. So far, we see no reason to issue a federal emergency order making the vaccine mandatory for everyone. We hope that will not change in the coming weeks and months. Contact tracing and testing are absolutely necessary..."

The underlying message is clear: If you want the right to refuse the shot, cooperate completely with contact tracing and get tested...and then we'll see.

More culture, outing, sensationalism, celebrities:

"Tonight, New York City is on fire with the story of former weatherman, Fred Smith. A popular fixture for many years on several local channels, Fred left his last job a month ago, after refusing to take the COVID vaccine. His subsequent divorce made headlines in gossip outlets. Then it turned out Fred had also refused to get tested. This was too much for his two adult children. They made public statements distancing themselves from their father. His son Ben said, "I could barely understand why in the world dad wouldn't take the vaccine. But when I found out he wouldn't even get tested, I was completely in the dark. I didn't want to speak to him anymore. I felt ashamed, devastated." Well, tonight we have learned that Fred has gone missing. The police are searching for him. He may still be in the city, but no one is sure. From beloved figure to outcast, Fred Smith...a tragedy..."

The coronavirus working group, composed of people from CDC, WHO, NSA, FBI, and other agencies, keeps pushing. They present a new set of numbers to the president. He holds a press conference:

"Frankly, it pains me to say this, but we must institute two lockdowns of cities. Dayton, Ohio, and Boulder, Colorado, are showing a new wave of COVID cases. After consultation with the governors of those states, mandatory vaccination is in effect for five defined groups of residents in those cities. The governors will be releasing specifics tomorrow..."

National TV talk show:

"So, Jim, first of all, thank you for your service. You've been working as a contact tracer for a year. Can you tell us what you do?"

"Sure, Bill. Basically, I go door to door and interview people who've been in contact with people who are infected with the virus. I inform them. I tell them they're at risk. I find out if they have symptoms. Many of them are surprised to learn there could be a problem. But I've also done a new training course. I can not only test these people, I can also vaccinate them."

"That's really terrific, Jim."

"I know. I'm now a one-stop shop. See, I had lost my job during the 2020 lockdowns. My family was on the edge. But when I saw the announcement for tracers, I jumped at the chance. At first, I was thinking of joining the military. But for me, this was even better. I could work in my community..."

"I see colleges are signing up students to be contact tracers now."

"You bet. In droves. And vaccinators, too. These kids are remarkable. They want to serve. I mean, education is a great thing, but work-study is a no-brainer. When you're young and you have high ideals, you want to make a difference. And now you can..."

Culture. Collectivism "at its finest."

"Dad, mom, I want to tell you something. I've decided to drop out of school and become a full-time tracer. I can still go back whenever I want to. But this work feels a lot better. The thing I've found out—we really ARE all in this together. And look, I can make 53 thousand a year, plus medical and dental. If and when I go back to college, I'll be on full scholarship. That's part of the new deal. You won't have to pay for my education anymore. I'm trained to vaccinate people in their homes. I'm friends with Paul, the starting tight end on the football team. He's dropping out, too. He wants to serve..."

Culture. Mind control for victory.

"Our top local story tonight. In San Francisco, the group known as VV, 'Vaccinate or Vacate,' which has been going door to door checking to make sure people are taking the COVID vaccine, now has uniforms. As you can see in this clip, the pants and jackets are brown and they appear military. VV states they're 'urgers not enforcers,' but some residents are worried. The city director of public health, Dr. Marissa Molotov, has met with VV and quote, 'come to an understanding' about the use of forceful language. 'These people are well-intentioned,' Doctor Molotov said. 'They just need to dial it back a little. Look, lives are on the line. Do we want more deaths, or do we want simple vaccine compliance?' Earlier this month, two members of VV, who are no longer with the group, were arrested by police after an altercation at a gym. The city attorney is still sorting out the details, and determining whether a weapon was actually drawn, and if so, whose weapon it was. Julia Copper, an ex-member, has previously told Channel Six News, quote, 'These people are fascists. They want to help the government by clamping down on people. This has nothing to do with vaccination, which everyone supports. VV has a violent mindset. They've formed groups in four states. They're expanding'."

CULTURE.

Bill Gates, TED talk: "Now that we finally have a vaccine out there, people are asking me how I think it's going. This is a question about logistics. There is no doubt we have to find a way to make the vaccine mandatory for everyone. The science tells us this. I and others have a plan. It's incremental, and it works. It'll reduce the incidence of COVID-19 by almost twenty percent in nine months...legislatures all over the world are now looking at a package of new laws that will clearly define conditions under which electronic surveillance can be expanded to 'pre-locate' people at risk for COVID-19 (standing ovation from the 'intellectual' audience who believe they understand 'science' but of course have no clue)."
