Have you been reading things you shouldn't online? Have you found yourself feeling frustrated and angry at the corruption of the ruling class, wealth inequality or the general state of the world?

Well then, the chances are good you've accidentally been exposed to “misinformation” or “extremist content” spread by “violent groups” in order to manipulate you.

But don't worry, Facebook is on the case. Simply report the offensive and upsetting materials to your local content controller, and then contact their pre-approved counsellors for immediate de-programming.

██████, you may have been exposed to harmful extremist content recently

Violent groups try to manipulate your anger and disappointment. You can take action now to protect yourself and others.

If it's not you that's been exposed to harmful content, but a loved one, and they're proving resistant to the proper un-extreming methods, then Facebook is here to help there, too.

Simply confidentially report your friend or family member to the proper authorities, and they'll take it from there.

Are you concerned that someone you know is becoming an extremist?

We care about preventing extremism on Facebook. Others in your situation have received confidential support.

How you can help

Remember that divergence of opinion is dangerous. Under no circumstances consume content that differs from your state-mandated opinions.

Report all infractions, refuse to see harmful facts, be sure to distance yourself from those who refuse to be corrected, for their own good and yours.

And have a nice day.
