While H.G. Wells has been popularized to today's generations as a profoundly prophetic science fiction writer, he was known in his day as a very busy boy getting the New World in Order...literally.

An outspoken proponent of everything global, Wells pushed a consistent theme of a global community and held a deep disdain for common humanity, a typical elitist eugenicist trait which he also championed.

Why was he so spot on with his forecasts, be it technology or societal changes? Could his membership in secretive clubs and societies have anything to do with it?

Ha.

Same old same old, who are we kidding. Things don't just happen, they're planned. Way in advance. By the time society fully wakes up to that it may just be too late. Even though it's gone on for centuries, if not millennia, it's too much for most to bear.

Cowards. Anyway you look at it, someone not willing to face the Truth is a coward.

Of course there's hope for anyone— there's always Now to discover your eternal self connected to all the Universe. Therein lies our key to freedom.

But people have to decide to take it.

H.G. Wells. Sense the stench of elitist arrogance? Armchair engineers deciding your fate. Like that? They're still here!

The Plan Unfolds

Here are some self-explanatory excerpts from an excellent paper on Wells' World Brain theory.

In 1938, aged 72, H.G. Wells published in American and English editions his little book of essays and speeches titled, World Brain. At this time of his life, Wells was an internationally famous literary figure. His books, fiction and nonfiction alike, were popular and widely translated. He had access to the leading statesman of his day.

Wells was a utopian social reformer. He was intrigued by socialism and was caught up for a time before the First World War with Beatrice and Sidney Webb, George Bernard Shaw and others in the Fabian Society. After the War he became increasingly and passionately dedicated to the idea that a new kind of world order was needed. In this connection he witnessed the rise of fascism and the Russian communist State with a curious ambivalence. As contemptuously critical as he was, especially of the fascist dictators, he seemed on occasion to suggest that their totalitarian regimes represented stages in the evolution of the new kind of single, unified World State that he believed was an inevitable.

And to address the generations to come of transhumanism and the global mind:

...Wells spoke of the gradual appearance "in the species Homo Sapiens" of "synthetic super-minds... into which individual consciousnesses tend to merge themselves." These super-individual organisations, are cultures, churches, communities, states, classes and creeds, and they represent "accumulations of mentality." Wells suggested that current trends seem to suggest that these are “coalescing”. They seem to be heading towards “an ultimate unification into a collective human organism, whose knowledge and memory will be all science and all history, which will synthesize the pervading will to live and reproduce into a collective purpose of continuation and growth.”

Wanna know where this monster Wells is going with all this?

In a later book, The Shape of Things to Come, he portrayed the adaptive processes at work in human society as overcoming “the inherent distaste in the individual for subordination and self-sacrifice.” To ensure the success of the new social order that is beginning to appear in the twenty-first century “man’s life and interests have been socialised against his natural disposition.” This is described as a subversive individualism. In the future Wells’s believed that “the obscurer processes of selection” will be “accelerated and directed by eugenic effort” and man will eventually become a new species (p. 426) .

Betcha didn’t know all that.

The World Encyclopedia is Now

[Wells] believed that his “modern encyclopaedism” constituted a “scheme for the reorganization and reorientation of education and information throughout the world. No less” (Wells, 1938, p17). It would involve assembling, he declared, “facts and suggestions with the same insistence upon scientific reality and the same exclusion of irrelevancies that has controlled the establishment of the world outlook that I have put before the reader.” ibid.

Wikipedia and all of it’s suspect roots is only a part of this. Clearly Wiki’s a globalist-sponsored amassing of information from the get go is definitely a world dominist agenda at work. No one trusts their information, yet you’re reliant on it for quick definitions. Clever assimilation of info, all according to plan.

It's the World Encyclopedia on steroids as predicted/foretold/instructed by Wells.

More profoundly, the matrix of information that H.G. Wells forecast is alive and well in the overall Internet, safely and fully controlled by the NSA and every nefarious information gathering body in the black-hearted, black-op world. The info-giants like Google are all part of it.

They all know it. But it's no skin off their noses, it's just the way it is to the cold-hearted executioners of this master plan.

The amazing thing is reading it so specifically forecast in the well publicized words of H.G. Wells, George Orwell, Aldous Huxley, George Bernard Shaw and other Fabian Society members way back when makes it clear the plan is long term and carefully followed through.

Eugenics is the Lifeblood of the Globalist Elites

In order to have their utopian society, the elites must clear out the underbrush...the undesirables, the unclean, the disadvantaged...as if they had nothing to do with their making. The arrogant hypocrisy is beyond description, but suffice it to say we need to identify these parasites for who they are and bring to light their nefarious undertakings.

Wells and many others were part of bringing these machinations to fruition. What's amazing in examining this evolution of structure is how smoothly these parasites have been able to pull this off, generation after generation. That sneaky, slithery nature is so akin to the Satanic underpinnings of the elite class it's undeniable.

It's Almost Over – Time to Drive the Stake In Truth cannot be trumped, despite all their long term plans. We've covered this many times, these bastards are long-term planners and motivated and empowered by we know not what, but it's not good, and it's long term.

So what.

This part of their agenda is just another piece of the puzzle of their multi-pronged oppression of mankind. History has been bastardized, blacked out and adulterated. The U.S. school system never mentioned eugenics or what else H.G. Wells was preaching. It's typical.

Just learn from this. It's only touching on another aspect. Getting the big picture is what it's all about.

Trust your instincts. Trust your heart. Be bold in your convictions.

Love always,
