Del Bigtree asked ICAN's attorneys to explain when someone can claim a medical exemption and whether a business can ask for proof of the medical exemption.

ICAN's attorneys, led by Aaron Siri, provided this letter. In short, ICAN has been advised that, upon asserting a medical exemption to wearing a mask, the business cannot ask for proof of the medical exemption.

If you want to complete a self-assessment to determine if you have a medical exemption to wearing a mask, here are self-assessment forms for residents in New York, California, and Texas. If you would like a self-assessment form for another state, please let us know!
