Excerpt from interview:

Jon Rappoport: What are you going to do? What choices are you going to make? Most people, of course, make the choice of doing nothing, saying nothing and staying at home. But as this keeps on going, then it doesn't look so good to do that...So what am I going to do?

Suppose the governor says "Well, if I, if I open up, if I say no, and I'm going to keep the economy open, maybe I'll die... Maybe that'll happen. Okay. That's my choice."

Catherine Austin Fitts: I chose death. 'Cause one of the things I realized was that the middle of the road is disappearing, you're on one side or the other. You gotta choose. And you know something, death is not the worst thing that can happen, 'cause these people are planning on chipping you.

And, you know, their talking about returning ... the reason they cancelled the African slave trade is they couldn't find a way to perfect the collateral. You know, now what Mr. Gates is proposing is a way to perfect the collateral. And they are going back to the slavery system...

How do we preserve a human civilization? Because whoever is at the top of this thing is not human. And from then on it's all strategy. How do we turn this around?

“A step-op is one in which the bad guys keep going, one intrusion after another. It isn't just West Nile, it's West Nile, then SARS, then Bird Flu, then Swine Flu. It's all one package, with the idea, in this case, that they'll slowly wear down the resistance and people will buy in, will buy the story, the lie. They want to people to OBEY. That's the whole essence of this op. OBEY. It isn't only about fake epidemics and getting vaccines. It's about operant training in OBEYING. Get it? In general. Obey us. We command, you go along.” ~ Ellis Medavoy in interview with Jon Rappoport, from The Matrix Revealed

by Catherine Austin Fitts
