The infallible doctors and scientists. The arbiters of truth and justice in these hard times, held up so high in society that us common folk look like ants from atop their pedestal.

In reality, like most people, they can be bought.

This has been a constant and well documented throughout recent history.

We’ve seen it back in the 1940s when tobacco companies tapped doctors on the shoulder to promote their cigarettes.

Even more horrific was the events surrounding the Tuskegee syphilis experiment. The list goes on and on.

Even now, public health leaders have strategically recruited people with large social media followings to push the current unconstitutional public health measures.

The moral of the story? People can be bought.

Do your own research and make up your own mind.
