With the nation currently gripped by the Coronavirus crisis, and with most of the public lauding the fact that the FDA is fast-tracking a new vaccine to supposedly fight the Coronavirus, with testing beginning already on humans with the experimental vaccine while bypassing animal testing, unknown to most of the public, a meeting was held on March 6, 2020 with the Advisory Commission on Childhood Vaccines \(ACCV\), under the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

These are quarterly meetings held every 3 months, as required by law, but seldom, if ever, publicized or reported on by the corporate “mainstream” media.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) is supposed to be the authoritative source for information about vaccines.

However, the CDC has huge conflicts of interest that are not disclosed to the public, as they are largest purchaser of vaccines in the world, using YOUR tax dollars to purchase them and advertise them. See:

Vaccine Injuries and Deaths

Report from the Department of Justice

March 6, 2020

Catharine E. Reeves
Deputy Director, Torts Branch

The March 6th meeting by the Advisory Commission on Childhood Vaccines included a report from the Department of Justice (DOJ) on cases settled for vaccine injuries and deaths as mandated by the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVICP).

The NVICP was started as a result of a law passed in 1986 that gave pharmaceutical companies legal immunity from being sued due to injuries and deaths resulting from vaccines.

If you or a family member is injured or dies from vaccines, you must sue the federal government in this special vaccine court. Many cases are litigated for years before a settlement is reached.

The March, 2020 DOJ report states that 288 petitions were filed during the 3-month time period between 11/16/19 – 2/15/20, with 181 cases being adjudicated and 146 cases compensated.

The March, 2020 DOJ report lists 74 of these settlements for vaccine injuries and deaths, and 60 of those were for damages caused by the flu vaccine (see below).

The Vaccine Injury Compensation Program was originally intended to compensate for vaccine injuries and deaths among children through the childhood vaccine schedule.

But in recent years, most of the settlements have gone to adults, mainly for injuries and deaths due to the flu vaccine.

If you read some of the reports from a few years ago, it can be seen that the primary injury compensated from the flu shot used to be for Guillain-Barré Syndrome (GBS), with symptoms similar to polio.

Guillain-Barré (Ghee-YAN Bah-RAY) syndrome (GBS) is a rare, autoimmune disorder in which a person's own immune system damages the nerves, causing muscle weakness and sometimes paralysis. GBS can cause symptoms that last for a few weeks to several years. Most people recover fully, but some have permanent nerve damage. Some people have died of GBS. (Source: CDC)

Today, most of the awards for flu shot injuries are for "Shoulder Injury Related to Vaccine Administration" (SIRVA).

SIRVA stands for "Shoulder Injury Related to Vaccine Administration." It can happen when a vaccine is injected into the shoulder too high or too deep and can cause several types of injuries. However, SIRVA can also occur when a vaccine is properly administered as well. This injury can, in turn, lead to intense, prolonged pain, limited range of motion, and shoulder-related injuries such as Adhesive

Capsulitis or Frozen Shoulder Syndrome.

SIRVA can be caused by an injury to the musculoskeletal structures of the shoulders (for example tendons, ligaments, bursa) during the injection of a vaccine. Additionally, it can also be caused by the body's immune system reacting adversely to one or more components of the vaccine.

The seasonal flu shot, among other vaccinations, is the most common cause of SIRVA because the vaccine is given annually to millions of people in the deltoid muscle of the arm. (Source.)

I asked Wayne Rohde, author of the book "The Vaccine Court," why there has been such an increase in awards for SIRVA and decrease in GBS, and he offered this comment:

The average SIRVA award range is $80,000.00 to $ 110,000.00. The average GBS award range is $225,000.00 to $ 500,000.00 plus life care annuity depending on the severity. (My estimate.)

The average award for child injuries was around $350,000.00 to $ 1 million depending on injury and severity. (My estimate.)

With SIRVA becoming the dominant damage award, we are seeing a shift from more costly compensation to very inexpensive awards.

The trend will be continue to lower the average award as more SIRVA cases become the ONLY award plus a few other adult cases of GBS sprinkled in.

Autism Vaccine Injuries Not Allowed: Too Many

One of the main reasons why the Vaccine Compensation Program pays out most awards to adults and not children anymore, is because they do not allow anyone to sue for “autism” related to vaccine injuries.

When the Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund was set up in 1988, autism was the most prevalent vaccine injury brought before the vaccine court, mostly from the MMR (measles, mumps, rubella) vaccine.

It soon became apparent that the trust fund, funded through taxes the public pays on vaccines, would not be sufficient to litigate all the claims for autism as a vaccine injury.

By March 1, 2010, 13,330 cases had been filed in the special vaccine court, with 5,617 representing autism cases. Of those 13,330 cases filed up to March 1, 2010, only 2,409 were compensated. The rest were dismissed, but there were 5,933 cases still pending, and most of those were claims for vaccine-induced autism, mostly due to either the MMR vaccine, or vaccines containing thimerosal (mercury).

So how did the federal government and the vaccine court handle this?

Simple. They took 3 “test cases” that they said represented all of them, and litigated against those claims. Their own appointed judges then ruled in each case that vaccines were not the cause of their autism.

Then they told everyone else that their autism could not have been caused by vaccines, and that they would pay no damages for all those hundreds of thousands of children suffering with autism. This was all part of what is called The Omnibus Autism Proceeding.

So if you have a child today injured by vaccines and suffering with autism, you cannot sue the federal government in vaccine court, as their official position is that “vaccines do not cause autism.”

U.S. Government being Sued for Lack of Vaccine Safety

When the 1986 National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVIC) was signed into law, it had certain provisions included to make sure vaccines were regularly tested for safety, since the pharmaceutical companies were being given legal immunity due to faulty vaccines.

The federal government Health and Human Services (HHS) department is tasked with this vaccine safety reporting, and a recent lawsuit has revealed that they have failed to conduct such vaccine safety studies since the law was implemented in 1986. See:

HHS Sued for Not Upholding Vaccine Safety Testing Mandated by Law

Since these facts about vaccines are routinely censored by the pharma-financed “mainstream” media and in government hearings, most of the public is largely unaware of the 1986 NVIC, and that pharmaceutical companies cannot be sued, and that one has to sue the U.S. Government in a special vaccine court.
