Poison in Our Vaccines—Investigating Mercury, Thimerosal, and Neurodevelopmental Delay

Poison in Our Vaccines-Investigating Mercury, Thimerosal, and Neurodevelopmental Delay

by Lyn Redwood, Originally Published Mothering Magazine, Nov-Dec 2002, Redwood, L.

sourced from the Children's Health Defense
June 8, 2020

More than 60 years ago, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved a little-known product, thimerosal, to be used as a preservative. Today, many parents question whether this product is responsible for the current epidemic of children diagnosed with learning disabilities and autism.

Read PDF:

Poison in Our Vaccines

INVESTIGATING MERCURY, THIMEROSAL, AND NEURODEVELOPMENTAL DELAY

BY LYN REDWOOD

More than 60 years ago, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved a little-known product, thimerosal, to be used as a preservative. Today, many parents question whether this product is responsible for the current epidemic of children diagnosed with learning disabilities and autism.