

Russia vs Ukraine: “Knowing the Truth Is Not Easy”

Russia vs Ukraine: “Knowing the Truth Is Not Easy”

Russia vs Ukraine

by Jeremy Nell, Jerm Warfare

sourced from Jerm Warfare newsletter, February 25, 2022

Look, I don't know what's going on in Ukraine.

I have some guests scheduled for my podcast, such as Kees Van Der Pijl and Richard Sakwa, both of whom are experts in international politics, especially Russian affairs.

Kees has been on my podcast before, but the topic was Covid propaganda. However, as a former Professor Of International Politics at Sussex University, and author of Flight MH17, Ukraine and the new Cold War, he knows a lot about that region.

FLIGHT MH17, UKRAINE AND THE NEW COLD WAR

Prism of disaster

KEES VAN DER PIJL

0.1 Ukraine in 2014: oblasts and provincial capitals; neighbouring countries.

In this book I analyse the MH17 catastrophe as a prism that refracts the broader historical context in which it occurred, arraying its distinct strands and their interrelations in a rare moment of clarity. These strands included the cansizing of the Eu-

Richard Sakwa also knows a lot about that region. He is, after all, Professor Of Russian & European Politics at the University Of Kent.

Short of actually being there, knowing the truth is not easy. But, two years into a fake pandemic, thanks to a well-funded and successful propaganda campaign, it should be blindingly obvious that believing corporate media is a terrible idea.

Take a look at this great diagram showing how the media multiplies propaganda.

Here's an even easier way of understanding it.

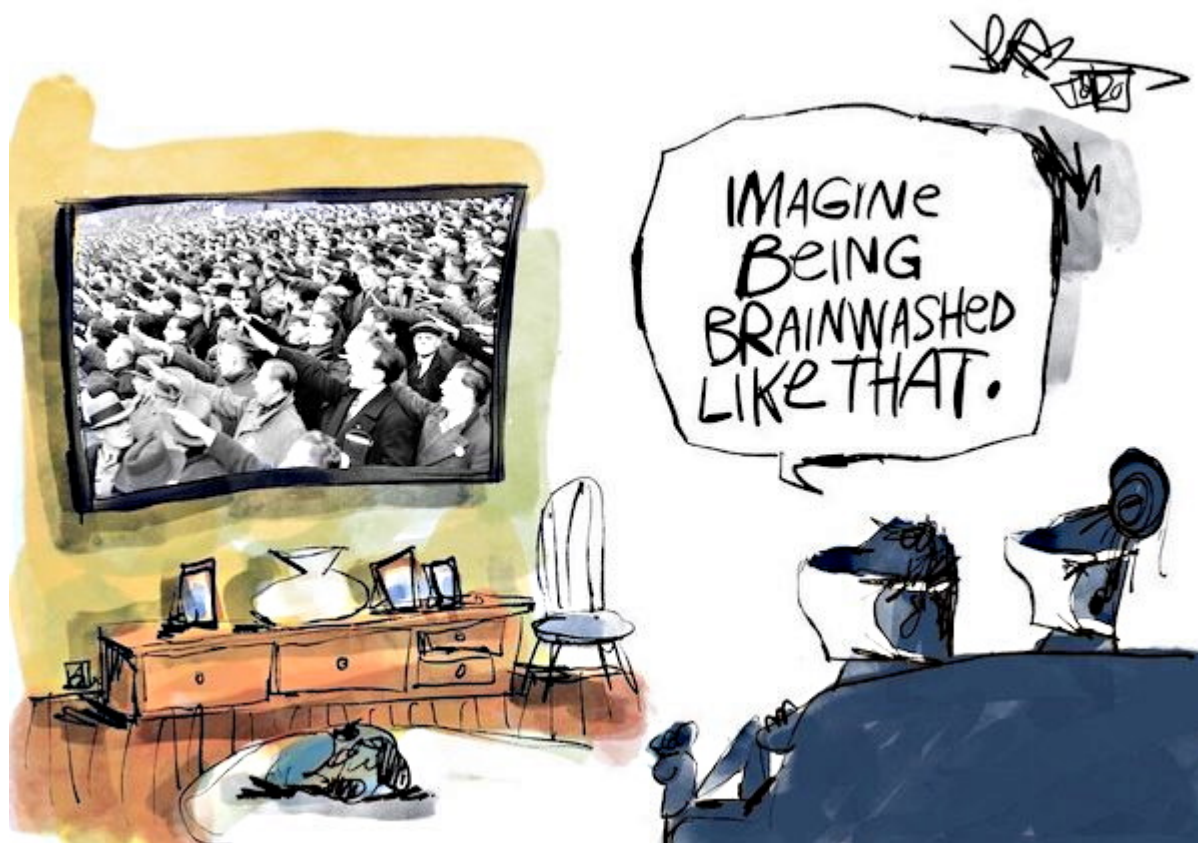

Let's say that I'm at the site of a plane crash. I take photos and write a quick story. I then sell it to a news agency. The agency then distributes it across its various media outlets.

A few hours later, millions of people have read my story and seen my photos on CNN, MSNBC, BBC, and so on.

Here's the thing.

What if my story is factually incorrect? What if I didn't actually take photos, but, instead, used photos from another plane crash? Sure, some news outlets might issue a retraction, but it won't matter. Millions of people will have been propagandised.

Which is where we are today.

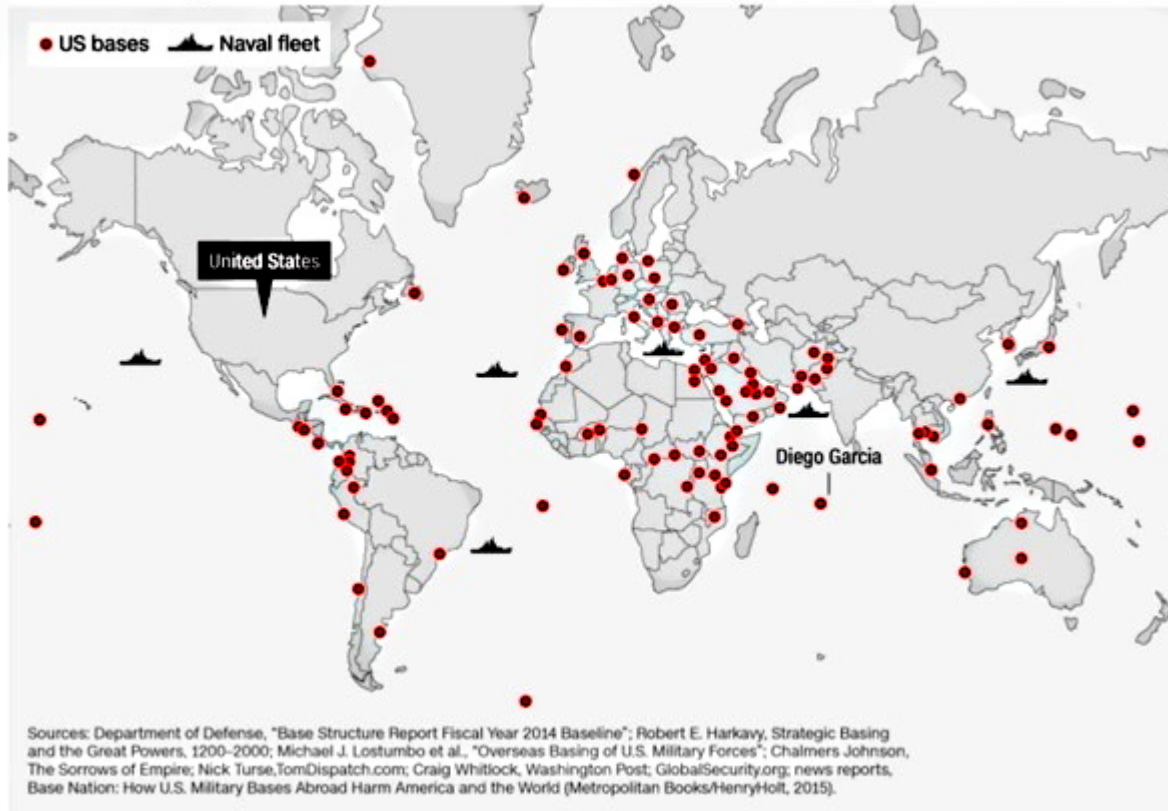

As I type this, there are millions of people who actually think that wearing a mask protects them from a virus, and that Pfizer's injection is safe and effective. Mass confusion is a highly effective tool of subversion, as former KGB agent Yuri Bezmenov said in an interview during the 1980s.

Back to Ukraine.

I will update you with the opinions of my guests in the coming weeks, but my immediate understanding is that the Biden administration and NATO have more blood on their hands than Putin (who is being forced into a corner), due to Ukraine being a trojan horse for the political and military expansion of the American empire.

US military bases abroad, 2015

But, as political analyst Jan Oberg said, all empires fall.

And the American empire is falling.

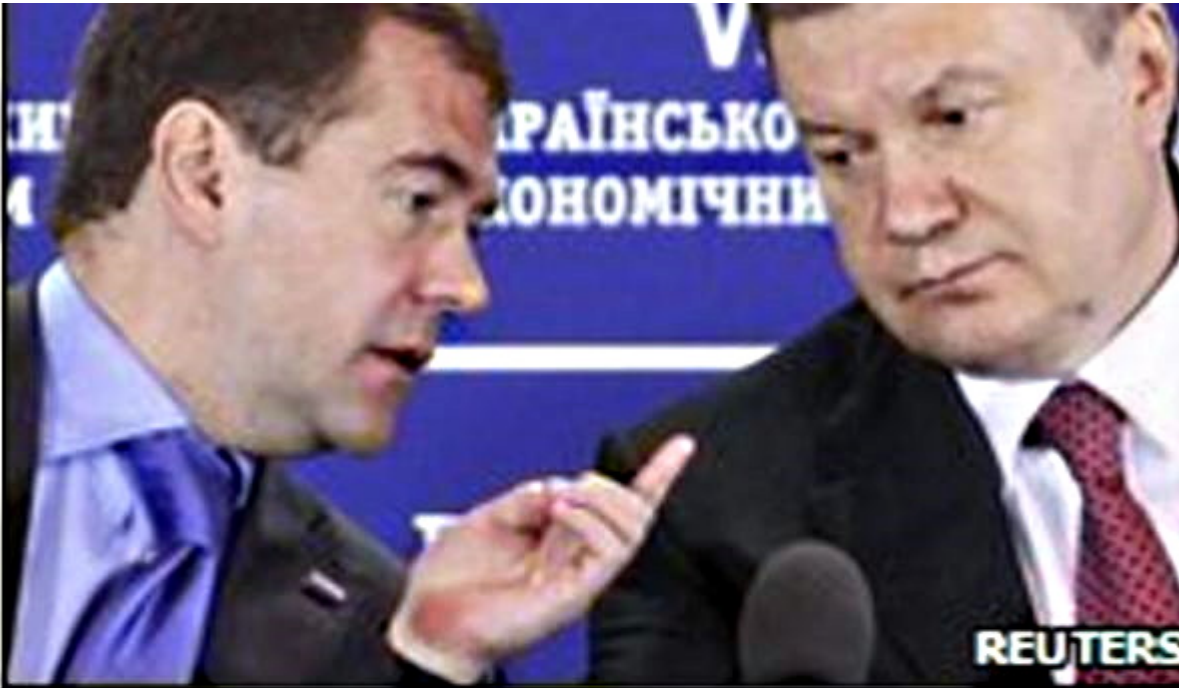

Lest we forget that the United States and NATO agreed, back in 1990, that the said expansion would not move eastwards. In fact, US Secretary Of State, James Baker, said to Mikhail Gorbachev,

“[N]ot an inch of NATO’s present military jurisdiction will spread in an eastern direction.”

That didn't happen.

And the Ukrainian government explicitly stated that it did not want to join NATO, during 2010, which was not happily received by the American government and NATO.

| Moscow and Kiev are on friendlier terms again these days

The Ukrainian parliament has approved a bill that effectively rejects any ambition to join Nato.

The law, submitted by President Viktor Yanukovich, cements Ukraine's status as a military non-aligned country - though it will co-operate with Nato.

President Yanukovich was elected earlier this year, vowing to end Ukraine's Nato membership ambitions and mend relations with Russia.

His predecessor, Viktor Yushchenko, had pursued a pro-Western foreign policy.

Geopolitics is complex, and nobody likes war.

But one thing is certain.

Unlike Donald Trump, Joe Biden does not like Vladimir Putin.

Joe Biden ✓

@JoeBiden

United States government official

Vladimir Putin doesn't want me to be President. He doesn't want me to be our nominee. If you're wondering why — it's because I'm the only person in this field who's ever gone toe-to-toe with him.

5:33 PM · 2/21/20 · TweetDeck

Say what you will about the Russian president, he is a masterful strategist.

Meanwhile, the leader of the "free world" is a bumbling fool who doesn't even know what year we're in.

I'll leave you with the following thought.

It just so happens that, by sheer coincidence, the US government funds a bunch of biolabs in Ukraine near the Russian border. The labs are referred to as "biological threat reduction" (whatever that means).

U.S. Embassy in Ukraine

Ukraine Related Calls: +1 606 260 4379 (outside the U.S.) or +1 833 741 2777 (from the U.S.) Read More...

Visas

U.S. Citizen Services

Our Relationship

Business

Education & Culture

Embassy

Biological Threat Reduction Program

Home | Embassy | U.S. Embassy Kyiv | Sections & Offices | Defense Threat Reduction Office | Biological Threat Reduction Program

The U.S. Department of Defense's Biological Threat Reduction Program collaborates with partner countries to counter the threat of outbreaks (deliberate, accidental, or natural) of the world's most dangerous infectious diseases. The program accomplishes its bio-threat reduction mission through development of a bio-risk management culture; international research partnerships; and partner capacity for enhanced bio-security, bio-safety, and bio-surveillance measures. The Biological Threat Reduction Program's priorities in Ukraine are to consolidate and secure pathogens and toxins of security concern.

The Russian government was ignored when it asked for an investigation into the purpose of the biolabs.

Thu, Feb 24, 2022

Newsweek

U.S.

World

Business

Tech & Science

Culture

Autos

Sports

Health

Opinion

Experts

WORLD

Vladimir Putin's Adviser Says U.S. Is Developing Biological Weapons Near Russia

BY BRENDAN COLE ON 4/8/21 AT 6:38 AM EDT

The Chinese government also asked about the biolabs.

Here are the locations of the biolabs.

US BIOLABS IN UKRAINE

Exclusive US biolabs in Ukraine, and they are financed at the expense of the US Department of Defense.

The laboratories are located in Odessa, Vinnytsia, Uzhgorod, Lviv (three), Kiev (three), Kherson, Ternopil, and near Crimea and Luhansk. 2 other possible locations Kharkiv and Mykolaiv

And here are the locations of the Russian bombings (as of two days ago).

Map of Russian missile strikes against Ukrainian targets. All military airports are apparently destroyed

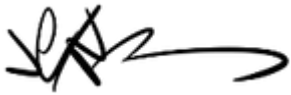

US BIOLABS IN UKRAINE

But, don't read anything into it.

It's just a total coincidence.

Russian man bad, right?

Connect with Jerm Warfare