Snippet from Interview:

'The thing that I talk about most is technocracy right now, because I believe that is and has been the major thread of history leading up to where we are today. And I do believe, starting with this great panic of 2020, that I call it, not just "the pandemi" but "the great panic of 2020".

We have essentially a technocrat coup d'etat this happened. Not just in our country. It's the whole world.

And the seriousness of this whole thing is just so immense that it's hard to get your head wrapped around it. And I'm sure some people are gonna be watching this thinking: 'what are they talking about?' 'How could this possibly be?'

But the whole world right now is laboring under the same issues that we are laboring in our country. That is the great panic of 2020. And aside from the physical virus part of it – we can just kind of put that aside for a bit – the reaction to it and the control mechanisms that have been set in play since then, indicates to me that the technocrats who were pushing technocracy globally have finally succeeded in springing the trap on the entire planet.

And in the process they've shut down the entire economic global economic system. And we'll talk about that a little bit. This is so big, it is hard to get your head wrapped around it. And I sometimes assume that people know more than what they do because I've been studying this for so long, looking at it for so long. It just seems natural to me. So I really want people to understand this and get a grasp of what's going on globally. Because it does affect us.

And I can assure you from emails I get from around the world, people in other countries are looking to America again to save the world. God help us. It's not gonna be our government that does it.

It's the America citizens like you and me. Somehow we have to come up with something that's gonna throw a monkey wrench in this whole thing. And reject technocracy again once and for all.

It was rejected back in last century in the 40s, and late 30s and 40s. We need to reject it again. And knock it back into the last century and leave it there permanently."
