The Deadliest Disease Known to Man Is Ignorance!

“A wise man makes his own decisions, but an ignorant man mindlessly follows the crowd.”

~ Chinese Proverb

We live in a world of lies, deceit, propaganda, staged narratives, and because this deceit has been widely accepted by the crowd, mass ignorance has been the result. This universal ignorance cannot be blamed solely on government, indoctrination centers called ‘public’ schools, politicians, or the media, except that these entities do advance every form of lie possible in order to fool the people into accepting storied fables leading them toward slavery. And as should be obvious at this stage of the game, the people have been thoroughly fooled, and have swallowed hook, line, and sinker, every bald-faced lie imaginable. The result sought and gained by the state, can be evidenced by the total submission and gross obedience to this heinous and politicized ruling class of psychopathic monsters.

This disease called ignorance, now consumes the minds of most all of this population, and is eating away entirely the ability to consider fact, to realize truth, to practice logic, to reason, and to muster any ability whatsoever to think critically as an individual. This state of being has been the common thread of this and other populations for a long time, but the complete lie of a fake disease called ‘covid,’ has exposed that mass ignorance is not only alive and well, but has infected almost to a man, this entire society and the world. There is no proven disease called 'covid,' there is no real scientific proof of 'covid' or any 'virus' whatsoever, but regardless of this truth, the whole world has fallen to its knees in a display of mass and pathetic gullibility so outrageous as to be insulting to any thinking individual.

This all comes down to the very unscientific false belief in germ theory, and the complete negation of terrain theory; a mistake of epoch proportion. There is no reason for one versus the other, but only the honest assessment of reality that is the human body. Even Louis Pasteur, the so-called father of germ theory idiocy, is said to have admitted on his death bed that the "pathogen is nothing, the terrain is everything." But to this day, real medicine is ignored in favor of very harmful prescription drugs sold by huge pharmaceutical companies, and surgery, as the only 'legitimate' treatment for any illness. Not prevention or cure mind you, but constant and forever treatment and death; treatment that brings hundreds of billions of dollars each year to what is now mistakenly called modern medicine and 'health care' administered by state whores.

Considering just the past three years, the fundamental issue should focus on whether or not this so-called 'covid' virus even exists, and once it is established that no valid scientific procedures have been accomplished to prove without a doubt that this virus actually exists, then it is imperative to discuss the claim that any virus exists, as none have ever been properly isolated or identified. It is also important to scrutinize all those who profit at extreme levels due to the lie of 'covid.' Some of those would include the entirety of the medical field, the pharmaceutical companies, the politicians and all the ruling class who desire control, the large corporations who gain more monopoly due to the purposeful destruction of the lower and middle class economic capabilities, and the owners of everything by the big banks and investment houses that gain trillions due to the massive money printing based on this 'covid' lie.

There are still many who claim both sides of this argument, and that has helped greatly the expansion of the lies, because what might be people who would normally question the state narrative, have become supporters of that same narrative. This is very confusing to those people who have placed their trust in these hypocrites who are either acting as controlled opposition purposely, or actually are ignorant of the obvious truth. These people are certainly contradicting themselves, whether they are doing so intentionally or not. Many of those taking what is considered a 'libertarian' approach, are simply agreeing to both sides of the argument by claiming that 'SARS-CoV-2 ('covid-19') is real and is a virus, and a massive threat to humanity. They are agreeing with the state's false narrative, and at the same time, claiming to be against the bio-weapon 'vaccine' injection. You know who these people are, but do you doubt their pretended sincerity? I think, at least in most cases, you do not. This is just a recipe for more confusion, and confusion leads right back to ignorance.

The so-called 'science' that advocates perpetual treatment, perpetual 'vaccines,' and perpetual wealth building for its drug pushers, is the quackery labeled virology. Of course, as one might expect, this is the 'science' of viruses, but since no virus in history has ever once been separated, fully isolated, or identified, how can such a 'science' exist? If there are no viruses, how can there be virology? One might also ask; if there is no direct threat, how can there be legitimate medical war against the people? In both cases, there is no legitimacy in virology or a 'health war,' but there is a valid and justifiable argument that virology is also a war against us; a war on humanity, because it is used to simply enrich the perpetrators of this fraud, to poison the masses, and to gain power and control over all.

The 'covid' and 'vaccine' frauds have been largely exposed, although the mainstream, and those in the alternative media as well, who continue to push the lie that 'covid' is real, was produced in a lab, and accidentally or purposely released on the world, are losing ground. Their next obvious move was to create the lie of variants; variants that came from a non-existent virus, and would be the next killer. This required even more poisonous injections, and 'vaccine' boosters. But these threats never panned out of course, so other threats were invented, such as the staged war in Ukraine, the lie of manmade 'climate change,' and then the threat of nuclear annihilation. Now, the tide has turned back to yet another falsely claimed dangerous 'viral disease' called respiratory syncytial virus, or RSV; a so-called sickness that is similar to a mild cold, but according to the drug-dealing medical establishment, it requires yet another killer 'vaccine.' The first toxic 'vaccine' used to 'combat' this same claimed affliction, was actually used and sickened and killed children in the 1960s who were said to have the very same RSV 'sickness.' You just can't make up this degree of lunacy.

There is a massive amount of evidence available to discount virology and to completely expose the ridiculous notion of germ theory, but changing the minds of the entire population after many generations of lies and brainwashing, is a difficult task to accomplish. It requires individual thinking and scrutiny of the atrocious state 'medical' policy that has consumed the public. One only has to understand who gains from the fraud, and which corporations and individuals control the medical field, in order to awaken to the fact that powerful criminal elements are involved.

As the never-ending idiocy of virology continues to rule the day, the Pfizer chief crows and brags to investors that the 'covid' fraud will continue to be a multi-billion dollar franchise for many years to come; and expects massive profits to continue. This is the thought process of those who profit from the false flag 'virus' fearmongering who desire to destroy humanity for money, power, and control; this as they increase the price of this poisonous bio-weapon injection by astronomical amounts, all the while knowing of the deadly harm caused by this toxic killer.

Open your minds, do your own research, understand the horror of the U.S. medical establishment and its pharmaceutical masters, and take proper care of your health instead of allowing the criminal system to harm you. Turn away from Pfizer, Moderna, AstraZeneca and all the other drug-dealing pharmaceutical companies, take responsibility for yourselves and your own health instead of relying on the evil state narratives that are only lies. Do not accept ignorance as the fall-back position; and instead inform yourselves about the terror of the state. The worthless election is over, nothing will change, except things will likely worsen, so abandon and negate this wicked state instead of hiding from the truth.

"The ignorance of the oppressed is strength for the oppressor."

Do leading members of secret societies managing many of the levers of influence throughout history wield genuine "knowledge known only to the inner elites"... or is something else at play?

In this Canadian Patriot Review documentary produced by Jason Dahl, narrated by myself and based on the work of Cynthia Chung, you will be introduced to the ancient origins of the occult societies that penetrated the heart of America's intelligence agencies after the murder of William McKinley in 1901.

This journey will take you into the heart of ancient occult societies that managed wars, financial and cultural policies over two millenia ago. You will learn of the underlying methodology of manipulation used to induce foolish kings and generals into self destruction during the days of the Persian Empire which continue to be used to this very day.

With this overview, you will be introduced to 1) the British roots of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry founded in 1801 by British grand strategists in South Carolina, 2) a figure named Albert Pike who led in the largest expansion of this foreign agency within the USA after Lincoln's victory in 1865 and 3) the "seat of government" which 33rd degree FBI director J. Edgar Hoover managed in the USA during the course of eight presidencies.

This dark history is contrasted to the courageous efforts of men who devoted their lives resisting the growth of this occult agency including President Franklin Roosevelt, Senator Thomas J Walsh, Congressman Hale Boggs, Attorney General of New Orleans Jim Garrison, Martin Luther King Jr, Bobby Kennedy and his brother John F Kennedy.

This documentary was based on the essay "The Origins of America's Secret Police" by Cynthia Chung, whose new book on the growth of 20th century fascism can be purchased here.

That Hideous Strength? Or Are More and More People Short-Circuiting?

That Hideous Strength? Or Are More and More People Short-Circuiting?

by Joseph P. Farrell, Giza Death Star

November 2, 2022

This odd and intriguing article was spotted and shared by K.R., and I'm passing it along, because I've noticed the same thing:

Why Are People Suddenly Short Circuiting?

Now, I share this, because "short-circuited" people seems to be on the rise, and some sort of hypothesis would seem to be in order. One has to be blind not to see that the alleged president is just not "all there." We saw a similar thing in the final months and years of the second Reagan Administration, when clearly that president was clearly showing signs of senility. With Bai-den I think the explanation goes much deeper than mere senility, but we'll get back to that.

If you are in the USSA, you recently also saw the spectacle of a "governors' race debate" between the Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, Fetterman, a Democrat, and Dr. Mehmet Oz, a Republican. The debate, which I have seen a little of, was honestly painful to watch, even for me who has no use for Mr. Fetterman, his party, or his policies. Let me repeat that: I have no use for him, his party, or his policies.

Yet the debate was painful to watch. Here was a man trying to recover from a stroke, who had and has obvious difficulty forming words into clear thoughts. He began the debate – his very first words – with a cheery “Hi!” immediately followed by “Goodnight everyone!” And it was downhill – no, a power dive – from there.

Frankly, I felt, and still feel, sorry for the man. to his credit, his opponent did not – as far as I am aware – once make reference to Mr. Fetterman’s difficulty and decrepit condition. But my problem was, why would any campaign allow a man in his difficulties to take a debate stage to begin with? Why, after such a stroke, allow the candidacy itself to go forward to begin with? For that matter, why allow Mr. Bai-den anywhere near power, when he too is in obvious decline?

As I said, we’ll get back to that.

The article itself raises other interesting questions, and yes, I’ve noticed it too: more and more people seem to be having some sort of difficulty:

Lately, celebrities and politicians have been exhibiting some strange behavior, and it isn’t just their usual weirdness on display. There’s clearly something else going on.

While on stage in Las Vegas, singer Katy Perry appears to have some sort of “malfunction” with her right eye where the eye appears to close on its own forcing her to prop open her eyelid more than once with her hand, only to have it close again.

Of course, there’s nothing unusual with winking one eye, but this was different. Perry appeared to have lost physical control of her eye as if it was suddenly operating on its own outside of her control while her other eye remained open appearing normal.

Then, with a flick of a switch, the wonky eye snapped out of its trance and the performer regained her composure while leaving fans (and 17 million TikTok viewers) questioning, is this chick even human?

It wasn't just Katy Perry in a Las Vegas performance; as the article notes, we've been observing it in Bai-Den too:

We've been watching our multiple vax boosted Commander and Chief short circuit for the past year and a half, so in many ways, seeing celebrities, politicians, and even regular people rebooting in public is simply part of our New Normal. We're told by the transhumanists that this is simply our new and improved future, and that it's best for everyone to boldly welcome our forthcoming dystopian Brave New World where it's acceptable for politicians to be only part human.

At this point, the article links the now-famous video clip of Mr. Bai-den Jo apparently falling asleep, or "zoning out", only to be brought back to "reality" by the interviewer.

There are other examples; consider these:

Recently, pro vaccine and fully vaccinated incumbent Virginia democrat Jennifer Wexton (VA-10) appears to have some sort of episode during her congressional debate. As she struggles to speak and form complete and coherent sentences she stares vacantly into some far away place. Her mannerisms appearing almost robotic. WATCH THE FULL CLIP.

Then there is news anchor Julie Chin who had what she thought was a mini stroke on live television. She, too, suddenly had difficulty speaking and forming coherent sentences, and like other instances, the entire episode occurred as if a light switch was briefly switched off and then flipped back on.

As far as the article is concerned, there is a clear hypothetical cause for the behavior:

All of these anomalies have one thing in common— they started happening after a certain rollout of a certain Emergency Use Authorized ~~vaccine~~ treatment designed to end the Covid-19 pandemic. It's the same treatment that ironically, never prevented "an individual from contracting or transmission Covid-19", and whose contents to this day still remain a mystery. However, one thing we do know about the mRNA vaccines is that they are a form of "technology" that, according to the Chief Medical Officer of Moderna from his 2017 TED talk, has the potential to hack "the software of life".

To its credit, the article notes the "change of language" now being pushed:

So, what's going on? To be honest, I don't know. What I do know is:

—They want you to get these shots at minimum every year and they may even require it.

—The language has changed. You are no longer vaccinated or boosted, you are considered "up-to-date" or updated. In order to comply with the latest vaccine mandate to work or attend school, you will now need to install the latest Microsoft Windows-like mRNA in order to be in compliance and fully "up-to-date".

—The transhumanist movement exists. It is no longer conspiracy and we have no idea how "updated" vaccines will figure into this cybernetic future although the World Economic Forum has a few ideas.

Are these mRNA technology-driven “updates” that are currently being touted as the future of medicine and being sold as a cancer cure just the elites doing their thing to help save the world? Or might there be something more sinister going on?

Well, in answer to that last question, you can mark me down in the “something more sinister is going on” column, and my reasons why bring us to today’s two-for-one high octane speculations of the day. two-for-one, because you get two completely different but only somewhat separate high octane speculations for the price of one. “Buy one, get one free,” so to speak.

The first speculation is: do you remember Dr. Charles Lieber? he was the Harvard chemistry professor and nano-technology expert that was arrested by federal authorities shortly after the whole planscamdemic broke out. He was arrested, so we were told, for allegedly not disclosing his financial links to the Wuhan Laboratory of Virology in China, whence the whole planscamdemic allegedly originated. Dr. Lieber, you’ll notice, has fallen completely off the radar since then, while the Orange Man’s Operation Warp Speed zipped along to become the fraud-riddled adverse-reaction sudden death injection-induced statistical anomaly we see today. The last I heard, Dr. Lieber had managed to contract a fast-acting, virulent and terminal cancer, somewhat like Jack Ruby.

In any case, Lieber’s specialty, according to some speculations in the alternative media at the time, was to embed nanotechnologies in – get this – “vaccines” or injections, nano-technology that was designed to break the blood-brain barrier, enter the brain, and...well, at that point, no one knew exactly what it was supposed to do, but some speculated that Baal Gates’ patents on “downloadable” vaccine “updates” had something to do with it, and still others thought that this was a way of tying the 5G roll-out to injections that would significantly increase one's emotional and mental suggestibility.

In short, the whole thing – 5g, nano-technology in the injections, and the injections themselves – were all part of a global mind-and-health manipulation event, and one reason Big Pharma was so anxious not to have to disclose the ingredients in its so-called “vaccines” was that the ingredients, or the ingredient amounts, or both, varied deliberately from batch to batch, and the responses to the different batches could be tracked through national and regional adverse reporting sites.

The scenario was like some Mengele-esque nightmare, on steroids.

I and others entertained its possibility at the time, and I still do. Now we're in “phase two” as “they” are attempting to roll out a kind of “Soviet Psychiatry”, painting the “non-vaxed” as emotionally unstable, anti-science, and “unhealthy.”

In short, I discount none of this.

But at a deeper level, I think we are looking at something spiritual. I've mentioned this possibility in some of our recent members' vidchats, and do so here publicly. Imagine being a self-proclaimed “good catholic” all your life, of average intelligence, but consuming ambition, willing to make the little compromises on the road to power. Once acquired, you then use that power to your and your family's financial gain, and using your family members themselves to increase your power and wealth, and turning a bling eye to their “shortcomings.” You openly support abortion on demand and a woman's right to choose, and continue to call yourself a good Catholic, a believing Christian. You achieve the highest and loftiest position of power... just as you've lost your mind, and are shaking hands with people who are no longer there. “C'mon, man, it's ok for a little boy to have surgery to change into a girl, or vice versa.”

The world of hypocrisy and illusion and word games which you have spun for yourself has become your reality, and you are no longer capable of discerning reality. You are lost in an insane, drugged-up world, a world you've done everything within your rotting, debauched power, to force on others.

And you are lost.

Banquet at Belbury? Indeed, yes.

See you on the flip side...

The Two Towers

by James True

October 30, 2019

It's not the Jews. At least not exclusively. The evil we face is inversion. It's moral cannibalism and self-mutilation. Inversion is a contagious pathogen of the mind. It's a possession of the empty-hearted. It's a walking sucking chest wound. It turns humans into drones for a hive.

Each finger sprouts another hand, and each hand sprouts five more fingers with five more palms. The fractal curse has infected Judaism, Catholicism, Christianity, Islam, science, fashion, government, mafia, military, and entertainment. A suicidal tone has been struck in the aether. It's a calling for the tower of Babel. What the pyramids of Egypt show are the power of devotion and obedience.

America suffers the same infection as Israel, England, and Rome. Our enemy is human evacuation. We see this manifest as psychopathy. The most dangerous beast in the jungle is the man with a hollow chest.

I always knew we'd talk about the Bible. I always knew it would make us uncomfortable. King James outlawed the spoken word by calling the tongue an instrument of evil. He declared a prohibition on the power of vocal cords. He declared magic a sin punishable by death. He said this before he published his Bible. In his book, Daemonologie, he said it plainly for his day.

"I mean by such kind of charms as commonly daft wives use, for healing of forspoken [bewitched] goods, for preserving them from evil eyes, by knitting ... or doing of such like innumerable things by words, without applying anything meet to the part offended, as mediciners do." – Daemonologie

God never told you to find him in the Bible. People told you that. God talks to us, but he doesn't speak English. That would require a man to be trained first by other men to understand his tongue. God needs no middle man. God moves in the eros of your spleen. We feel him as the breeze during our tragedies or inspiration. I see calligraphy drip from his pen when it rains. I lay in my bed, and the moon tracks across the curtains. I see God's light poke through his vaulted firmament. God speaks in everything that moves and doesn't move. God is the spoken word, and King James outlawed us from using it.

The Bible describes a technology called LORD. This technology requires a belief you are broken. Wild horses are broken. May we look to the stars instead of man to see the scripture around us. We are holy submarines submerged in an ocean of atmosphere.

God is not found in a Nicene Creed. God did not sign his name in the Bible. The belief in Saints is a chain of command. Yesterday, someone told me it was okay for a state to take a life because it was in the Bible. Last month, someone said the Bible condoned taxes, so it is our duty to render them without question. People insist Palestinian genocide is impossible since they are God's chosen people. LORD technology is a magnet that bends our compass. It was designed to work that way.

Why would God lock his words in ancient greek and hide them in one geography and time? Why would he leave his most vital notes filtered through man's fingers? Why would he establish a chain of command through the Father, the Son, the saints, and the church? Why not speak directly to us? The Bible's foundation came from the Book of Moses. The same men that lie today have lied for centuries. They've gotten quite good at it because we are so prone to believe them. The Holy Spirit never whispered to any of us, "I wrote the Bible." It was always a company of men who insisted it was divine.

Salvation is a powerful trance. If you doubt, you are told to add more Bible. The answer is always in the book. The flaw is always in the reader. The scripture is not to be questioned. To question is to doubt. If you don't see God's grace in the pages, your heart may not be worthy. Read some more. Pray for guidance. The book is flawless.

We worship the Bible as a relic despite it having a commandment telling us not to. This is an example of Christian inversion. People insist they don't worship the Bible. But calling something flawless is an act of worship. Our devotion to its text is deeply ingrained obedience. If you don't like the answer, you should read quietly until you do. In Christianity, like Islam and Judaism, to doubt the costume is to doubt God. This is what happens in monotheism. If I burn in Hell, it will be for challenging the books of Moses and Abraham. I will plead my case for exercising scrutiny.

"Blessed is the one who does not walk in step with the wicked or stand in the way that sinners take or sit in the company of mockers, but whose delight is in the law of the LORD, and who meditates on his law day and night. That person is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season and whose leaf does not wither— whatever they do prospers”. – Psalm 1:1-3

Prana is real, and LORD technology traps it in its frame. All of our beliefs get sucked into the intake when we confess we're dirty. We subscribe to a gold level service called salvation. But salvation is never a journey forward. Salvation comes on knees. Salvation is a climb out of a pit. The ascension program requires you to be desolate. Salvation promises you will stand where you once stood before you got here. The truth is, most people feel safer in the pit. Shame is a contract with slavery. Sovereignty is the man who truly confesses to himself. Otherwise, salvation is intimidation.

“Serve the LORD with fear and celebrate his rule with trembling.” – Psalm 2:11

Inversion splits the mind. It uses the hatred of self to crack open the husk. It empties our pearls for the machine to mince. Abandonment is the origin of inversion. It turns Judaism into blackmail. Catholicism into pedophilia. Christianity into Zionism. Inversion is a psychological disassociation. It exists between the Old Testament and the New Testament. The two towers of mind control are severity and mercy – Jachim and Boaz. These are spark gaps crackling their way up Jacob's ladder. This is the hypnotism of good and evil. The golden child is anointed publicly to make each witness a scapegoat.

When all the people were being baptized, Jesus was baptized too. And as he was praying, heaven was opened and the Holy Spirit descended on him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven: “You are my Son, whom I love; with you I am well pleased.” – Luke 3:21

The LORD of the Bible and the LORD of the Quran are the same. LORD is the shepherd, and man must learn to be a good beast. Mankind accepting salvation through the eye of providence is that contract. The New World Order is the blueprint for globalism. This plan will only be forced on a minority. The majority will call it God's will or beg for it to happen.

This is a hypnotic spell older than history. It's a vibration planted over five-thousand-years ago. The only cure is to cut our engagement from its belief. Doing this will feel like a betrayal. This is the adhesive of mind control doing its job. There is a cost for your sovereignty. To be free, one must commit to the quest.

We fear the LORD. The Bible won't even spell out his name. The authors decided our eyes were too profane to read it. Our salvation is placed too deep in the pit to ask for LORD's identification. We give LORD all of our power in exchange for acceptance and mercy. This is the blueprint of mind control. A snake oil runs in the scripture. LORD technology comes with the side-effect of death for the individual.

There can be only one LORD.

The third temple will mask the third world war. A grand reset will subdue and distract us in the Jubilee. All nations will be brought to their knees before LORD. He is the shepherd in the Eye of Providence. In this Apocalypse, the gods of Yahweh and Allah will be revealed as one. All people of the world will be declared children of Abraham. The chosen ones will administer LORD's government like a Tabernacle in the Wilderness. The New World Order is a coming together of the hive. Rapture is our welcome to oblivion.

Globalism is a pyramid scheme. It's a powerful spell of hypnotism. God is centralized behind a chain of command. A central book forms a single eye for seeing. Sixty-six chapters are the entire Alpha and Omega.

Globalism is a trance between pillars. The pillars of the Bible are two testaments. The pillars of Abraham are Islam and Christianity. The pillars of governance are Capitalism and Communism. The pillars of sovereignty are Master and Slave. The pillars of politics are Republican and Democrat. The Two Towers are an ancient spell of sound. Two tones produce a third sympathetically as the resonance splits us open.

Possession is the one true goal of globalism. Possession comes out of disassociation. The two towers are instruments of evacuation. In the Old Testament, God hates you. In the New Testament, he loves you. The dissonance comes in the fluctuation. This is the art of gaslighting.

When one man saves another from his death, we call that a life debt. The debtor's sovereignty is obligated to his master until it can be repaid. Since early Rome, the title, Pater Patriae, was given to the rescuer. This is second father. It's a belief technology made from reverence instead of fear. We earn LORD's mercy by accepting our life debt to his son. In LORD technology, you are a genetically profane being and were saved by the death of the golden child. An oath was sealed in blood on your behalf long before you ever got here. This is how you possess a heart. It becomes too uncomfortable to remain in the chest. We make room for the Holy Spirit.

Stockholm syndrome is trance that can be passed down generationally. Our soul is split with the fork and spoon of the LORD. The fork of guilt pricks us open, the spoon of salvation scoops us hollow. LORD is a technology of belief and possession. The Holy Spirit is an ethereal corporation.

This isn't a call to abandon the Bible. It's a call to reclaim your life. Belief is the most valuable commodity in the world. Its collection has been centralized and used for nefarious purposes. The system is selling you back a tiny portion of your original power after it's used for corruption.

[This article is an excerpt from my new book.]

I know what makes this world tick. It's blackmail. It's salvation monopoly. It's ocean tankers of epigenetic inversion. There is a technology and an economy to belief. I pin it down in my new book The Technology of Belief. Buy your copy now on Paperback, eBook, or I can mail you an Autographed Copy

Putting a Chip in Your Brain Will Not Make You a Superhero (or a God)

The Most Important Video We Have Ever Watched!

by Peter and Ginger Breggin

Aaron and Melissa Dykes have made the single most important video that we have ever watched. It is called Putting a Chip in Your Brain Will Not Make You a Superhero or a God.

It follows their astonishing documentary about the history of mind control, The Minds of Men.

Elon Musk, the super-wealthy founder of Tesla, has now officially with great fanfare rolled out his ongoing and rapidly progressing technology for the physical control of the brain and mind by irreversibly hooking up our living brains with thread-like wires to the hard metal of supercomputers. But what will happen to the humans enmeshed in this catastrophe and who will be controlling them?

In the video by Aaron and Melissa, we see and hear Musk and his team at their official roll out describing how they are building a foundation for mass application by first getting approval from the FDA for more limited “medical” uses.

Inevitable Collusion with the FDA

Will they succeed in getting the FDA to cooperate with their grand plans? This is the same FDA Medical Devices division that tacitly approved lobotomy and psychosurgery by never lifting a finger to have it controlled. It is the same FDA division that finally after 80 years took action aimed at electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) this year by officially approving it for the first time.

If the FDA can approve something as grossly brain damaging as ECT—knocking people out with jolts of electricity through their brain causing a severe convulsion, putting them into a coma, flatlining their brain waves, and having them come awake with a severe traumatic brain injury (TBI)—the agency will have no trouble approving “little tiny wires you can barely see” stuck in our brains.

The FDA Introduces Monarch for Our Children’s Brains

In fact, the FDA has already revved up the electrical attack on our brains—starting with the brains of our children. Through our new project, Stop the Psychiatric Abuse of Children (SPAC!), Michael Cornwall and I are trying to stop the newly FDA-approved Monarch device which uses electrodes on the forehead to flood the brains of children with electrical impulses for psychiatric purposes. This electrical “stimulation” technology—really, electrical disruption and destruction technology—was approved by the same FDA division for Medical Devices and is primitive compared to Musk’s incredibly ambitious project. Monarch, as rudimentary as it is, is a gateway to Elon Musk and those who join him in promoting physical control of the brain and mind. If the FDA approved Monarch, how much more readily will they approve interfacing the brain with computers with all the intellectual hoopla and multi-billionaires promoting?

Musk will plant the tiniest possible electrodes (called threads) permanently in the brain along with a chip in the brain to interface with apps that will be controlled by neuroscientist Muskies (my word) doing the great man’s bidding. Even if this were safe, which it absolutely is not, the Dykes remind us that these devices will enable hackers literally to break into people’s brains and minds to work their will on helpless human beings.

Ransomware Takes on New Proportions

Imagine ransomware getting hold of your brain and demanding an astronomical payment for its release. There are so many horrors easily imagined and easily made into reality by these technologies, from taking prisoner the minds of men, women, and children to discovering, in the long run, that the permanently implanted electrodes wear down and destroy free will and the sense of being human. Then there will be all the subtle changes that human subjectivity cannot not detect because the induced brain dysfunctions will inevitably dull our sensitivity to ourselves and begin to seem like "normal."

Ultimately humans will not know what it was once like to be free and independent thinkers and autonomous beings. There will be vague yearnings for what was once experienced or talked about, references in books to a free will and autonomy, that now seems old-fashioned and romantic. Technology will indeed have won. But that last comment is nonsense, because technology will not be the victor. The victor will be the malicious will of people like Elon Musk.

A Faustian Compact with AI

Watching Musk in the video, we see a person who looks and sounds like Faust making a deal with the devil by accepting physical control of the brain in order to fight off the superiority of Artificial Intelligence (AI) which otherwise will take over the world. I am not exaggerating; you must see the video.

You will witness how Musk once called AI a demon and now he says we have no choice other than to physically interface our brains with the demon AI in order to control it. Musk is specific about this Star Wars of the brain drama—physically interfacing computers with the brain to make us into superheroes who can defend ourselves against and triumph over the monster AI that Musk and others have already supposedly unleashed on us.

Never mind that Musk's pretensions are grandiose, probably cannot be done effectively with any existing technology, and doomed to end in tragedies beyond human comprehension. Musk is forging ahead with it and he will easily garner billions of dollars from investors to develop and promote it. And as you look and listen to Musk, you will see a man who is sweating, stammering, nearly incoherent at times, frequently giggling and laughing demonically, and literally looking possessed, as he voices megalomaniacal aims. Once again, you must see the video for yourself to confirm what I am saying.

Physical Control of the Brain for Political Purposes

As Aaron and Melissa demonstrated in The Minds of Men, I was probably the first to criticize in detail the blueprint for all that is now unfolding when in the early 1970s I took on the neuroscientist Dr. José Delgado, author of Physical Control of the Mind: Toward a Psychocivilized Society.

Delgado was literally a Fascist, a man who received medals from Fascist Spain, and who claimed that his work proved the irrationality of the American Founders in proclaiming that human beings have free will and the right to enjoy political liberty. I was able to stir up so much criticism of him that he was driven out of Yale University, where he was a visiting professor, and he had to creep back to Spain. I doubt, in the current worshipful environment toward technology, if I could have a similar impact.

At the time he was forced to leave the US, Delgado was masterminding the remote control of hapless mental patients who came under his dominion. This project, which my anti-psychosurgery campaign stopped, was conducted by a psychiatrist and highly respected neurosurgeons affiliated with Harvard in Boston. You can read about all this in my overview report for a law review titled "Psychosurgery for Political Purposes."

Please, please watch the new video by Aaron and Melissa Dykes: Putting a Chip in Your Brain Will Not Make You a Superhero or a God.

We will be communicating more about this enormous, escalating threat which will make psychiatry with its drugs and electroshock look like a minor phase in the suppression and control of human beings through technology.

Perhaps the most insidious thing of all—the stigma of psychiatric treatment has been removed. Elon Musk and billionaire friends will be using physical control of the brain, not to cure alleged mental illnesses or violence, but to make us Better than Ever—super people physically joined to computers to Take on the World as Cybernetic Superheroes! It will make a great action movie; but it portends the end of humanity as we know it.

TSM [TruthStream Media] Editor's Note: It wasn't until after we uploaded the video above regarding the Neuralink rollout that we discovered (unsurprisingly) that DARPA, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, was responsible for funding the creation of the electrode "sewing machine" robot, about which the agency discussed its "excitement" on Neuralink's progress in an official DARPA Instagram post the day after Elon Musk's big announcement.

The fact that it has transitioned to use by industry underscores the effectiveness of DARPA’s model of reducing technological risk to create new opportunities. Even as industry now plays a welcome and increased role in certain aspects of neurotech, DARPA will continue to work at the frontier of what’s possible to avoid surprise, reduce risk, and continue to create opportunity. For instance, our Next-Generation Nonsurgical Neurotechnology program is looking at how to develop high-resolution interfaces that work without the requirement for surgery so that they can be used by able-bodied people.

(Images: @UCSF) #brain #innovation

For years now DARPA has been publicly working on what the media has now dubbed its “super soldier” brain-computer interface project. Essentially they are attempting to create cyborgs – cybernetic organisms. In addition to implantable neural interfaces, in March 2018 DARPA announced its Next-Generation Nonsurgical Neurotechnology (N3) program, awarding grants to teams at Battelle Memorial Institute, Carnegie Mellon University, Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, Palo Alto Research Center (PARC), Rice University, and Teledyne Scientific to develop wearable, high-resolution bidirectional brain-machine interfaces.

As Engineering.com explains, “Basically, DARPA is looking for a way to wirelessly ‘jack in’ to a soldier’s brain tissue to use AI software systems to control autonomous and semi-autonomous weapons. And DARPA has been pursuing and funding research on brain-machine interfaces since it began awarding contracts to researchers at UCLA starting back in the 1970s, which was previously funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation.”

Sherry Peel Jackson: A Strong Wake Up Call from a Former IRS Insider

Just When She Thought She Was Unstoppable

by Jeff Berwick

I recently spoke to a former IRS agent and Certified Fraud Examiner. For over seven years she audited businesses, individuals, and ministers for the Internal Revenue Scam.

Then Sherry Peel Jackson's life changed from "soaring like a rocket" to hitting rock bottom, but this experience started her process of digging to get to the root of things, and led to her climbing up out of the pit and back to the peaks.

It all began with a phone call; "You just got served with a lawsuit," said the voice on the other end.

Up to that point, she was living the good life, with a family, a nice home and a thriving business. Just one thing:

"Government officials aren't above the law. I couldn't keep my mouth shut when I learned about some of the unethical things my former employer was doing, so they decided that enough was enough and they pulled out all the stops to make sure they shut my mouth for me."

Sherry is a born fighter and was not going to back down, because truth is truth for everyone or it's not truth at all.

But powerful people have deep pockets and some can manufacture and manipulate just about any outcome they desire.

Thus, Sherry Peel Jackson found herself in shackles and handcuffs being led off to serve a four-year prison sentence on a misdemeanor charge. Rapists and some murderers have gotten less time!

She was a political prisoner for daring to show the American people that they are being tricked out of keeping what they earn.

"I kept my wits about me during this tribulation no matter how much I was challenged by women, jailers or my own enemy – my inner-me,” explained Sherry:

“Your best days are ahead if you leave the past behind and know that you have value to add to the world!”

Now an international speaker, financial and business strategist, whistleblower and author of How To Stick It To The IRS: Confessions From A Former Insider, I interviewed her for Anarchast episode 486.

We discussed everything from working at the IRS, profound injustices in the agency, and how they screw the little guy, to the We The People Foundation, getting raided and corralled at gunpoint, a 4 year jail sentence for misdemeanor failure to file a tax return, and 5 months in solitary in max security!

We also explored how the government muzzles churches and the IRS destroys countless lives.

The Legal Lynching of a Truth-Seeker: Jim Fetzer's Stalinist-Style Show Trial

by Kevin Barrett

Tuesday was the final day of Jim Fetzer's defense against Lenny Pozner's libel lawsuit. I attended and wrote up a "just the facts" report that evening. At almost the same moment I published my report, the jury came back with a verdict awarding close to half a million dollars to Lenny "Jim Fetzer gave me PTSD" Pozner.

Now it's time for an opinion piece. And as much as I sympathize with Mr. Pozner, assuming his account is accurate, my opinion is that Jim Fetzer got a raw deal...and that the reverberations of this case will be disastrous unless it is overturned.

The whole courtroom drama was carefully scripted and controlled to ensure that the jury, as well as onlookers and reporters, got to hear only one side of the story. Fetzer was never allowed to present his defense.

Jim Fetzer's defense is simple: Truth is an absolute defense against libel, and Fetzer published statements alleged by Posner to be libelous because he believed them to be true. What's more, he still believes them to be true. Whether he is right I do not know. But I do know he is sincere in his beliefs.

I watched Jim Fetzer take the stand, swear to tell "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth"—and then watched him silenced and admonished, and the jury hurriedly chased out of the room, when he tried to speak the truth as he saw it.

Jim merely said he still believed his "libelous" statements were true. Asserting the contrary would be a lie. Not saying anything would be a lie by omission. So he was admonished and threatened by the court for the sin of not lying on the witness stand!

As I understand it, at no point during the two phases of the trial was Jim Fetzer ever allowed to present to a jury the evidence that led him to believe that Sandy Hook was an Operation Gladio style psy-op (which those who have read Daniel Ganser's NATO's Secret Armies know is entirely plausible) and that there was no actual school shooting (which does seem farfetched, but stranger things have happened). How could he present a truth defense without showing the evidence that led him to believe his allegedly libelous statements were in fact truthful?

According to the 7th Amendment of the Constitution:

IN SUITS AT COMMON LAW, WHERE THE VALUE IN CONTROVERSY SHALL EXCEED TWENTY DOLLARS, THE RIGHT OF TRIAL BY JURY SHALL BE PRESERVED...

Yet as I understand it—and perhaps someone can correct me in the comments if I am wrong—Jim Fetzer was never given the right of trial by jury to determine whether he had or had not committed libel. Instead, an obviously biased judge presided over that crucial first phase of the case, denying Jim's Constitutionally-guaranteed right to a trial by jury. The same judge prevented Jim from presenting his truth defense, which would have entailed giving Jim full scope to present the evidence that led him to believe his statements were truthful and therefore not libelous.

It was only in the second, penalty phase of the trial that a jury was convened. And during that phase, not only was Jim prevented from presenting his truth defense to the jury, he was prohibited from even mentioning it, or from telling the truth about his beliefs.

Meanwhile the Pozner team was allowed to engage in shameless emotional manipulation of the jury. They even projected a huge adorable picture of Noah Pozner on the screen as the backdrop to the crucial back-to-back testimony of Lenny Pozner and Jim Fetzer! (Jim Fetzer, of course, was not allowed to use the big screen to project images that raise questions about the official story of Sandy Hook—images that can be found in *Nobody Died at Sandy Hook*, but which were, along with all other evidence supporting Fetzer's truth defense, in essence banned from the courtroom.)

Chilling Effect?

One of the most dangerous repercussions of Pozner-vs.-Fetzer is its potential chilling effect on free speech. The decision awarded more than half a million dollars in “damages” based on the premise that a book presenting an alternative interpretation of a historical event hurt someone's feelings. There was no tangible connection between the “libelous” statements in the book and any actual damages—loss of income, medical bills, etc. It was all about emotions: “This tearjerking Hollywood-style courtroom spectacle has whipped us into tearful sympathy with Pozner and two minutes of hate for Fetzer. Let's express our emotions with a damage award.”

Following the court's logic, if a German-American's feelings are hurt by a book portraying Germans as villains in World War II, why not sue the author for libel and ban the book? Why not drag the author into court—and refuse to allow him to present the reasons he thinks his anti-German interpretation of World War II is truthful? Of course that would never happen, since popular prejudices are in sync with hatred of Germany's mythic villainy; the court would find ways to rig the process to support the popular prejudice.

So how about these more plausible examples: African-American plaintiffs sue publishers for hurting their feelings by publishing 19th-century texts that include libelous portrayals of blacks; the grandson of Lyndon Johnson sues authors who have hurt his feelings by arguing that LBJ participated in the JFK assassination coup; a father who lost a son in Iraq sues an antiwar author for hurting his feelings by asserting that the invasion of Iraq was a criminal war based on lies and that his dead son was a war criminal.

One can imagine an almost infinite number of possible “libel” cases along these lines. And while only a few are likely to actually happen, that is a few too many—because the chilling effect of such lawsuits will terrorize authors and publishers into avoiding controversial or unpopular historiography. This is precisely what the Bill of Rights, whose purpose is to protect controversial and disturbing speech about matters of public import, is supposed to prevent.

I have had my differences with Jim Fetzer on many issues, including Sandy Hook. Specifically, I think we should be very careful about asserting or insinuating “nobody died” theories about suspected false flag events, for reasons that should by now be obvious.

But this is bigger than Jim Fetzer and Sandy Hook. This is about saving the Bill of Rights, which is under attack today as never before. Regardless of whether Jim is right or wrong about Sandy Hook, regardless of how mistaken some of his approaches may have been, the outcome of Pozner v. Fetzer presents a clear and present danger to freedom of expression in the United States.

The process of Pozner v. Fetzer appears to have been rigged precisely for the purpose of engineering this controlled demolition of our Constitutional rights. It must be appealed and overturned.

Vaccine Experiment Atrocity: Human Infection Model

Vaccine Experiment Atrocity: Human Infection Model

by Vera Sharav

It appears that vaccine manufacturers are ever more impatient to reap high profits from new vaccines – especially since they have entered into “public-private” partnerships with governments. Increasingly, government officials oblige this greed-infected industry with laws mandating new vaccines. And public health authorities around the globe have become marketing auxiliaries for vaccine manufacturers.

A report in the Economic Times of India, confirms that the Indian health ministry is working with the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR), the Department of Biotechnology, and the Drug Controller General of India (DCGI) as they embark on a medical atrocity – that is, to conduct clinical trials in which human beings are deliberately infected with deadly diseases in order to test the efficacy of experimental vaccines. The India Infection Research Consortium has named these experiments: “controlled human infection model (CHIM)”

This “controlled human infection model” is no different than the medical atrocities committed by the medical establishment under the Nazi regime.

India’s public health officials declare that the CHIM atrocity will abide by “high standards of medical ethics.”

Which standards of medical ethics?

The Nuremberg Code is the most important document in the history of the ethics of medical research.

3. “The experiment should be so designed and based on the results of animal experimentation and a knowledge of the natural history of the disease or other problem under study, that the anticipated results will justify the performance of the experiment.”

India will be hosting a gathering in November to work on broad guidelines for “controlled human infection model” (CHIM) experiments.

The conference will include an international roster of researchers and regulators. The invited regulators include representatives of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration \(FDA\), the European Medicines Agency \(EMA\), the U.K. Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency \(MHRA\), and experts from the World Health Organization \(WHO\). They will be collaborating and lending the veneer of legitimacy to a medical atrocity.

Here's our latest – a really creepy clip from the archives that makes clear that there is a power behind the throne, and that control, even internal mental control, has been on the table for a long time.

Not sure what that adds up to in your book, but we call it “scientific dictatorship.” It suggests a long-standing capability. It renders many aspects of civics meaningless and trivial, and perpetually raises uncomfortable questions. Maybe that's why the world tends to bury its collective head in the sand.. but as we all know, that will only make the problem worse. It is better to at least know.

Did you know the “goal” to create a transhuman universal consciousness hive mind via technology was openly admitted in the late 1960s?

The release of Dr. Gerald Feinberg’s “The Prometheus Project” in 1969 conveniently overlapped MK Ultra and the push for Violence Project, Woodstock and the counter culture movement, the Vietnam war draft, and so many social changes... It was also the same year that Dr. Jose Delgado’s “Physical Control of the Mind: Toward a Psychocivilized Society” was published. None of this is a coincidence.

Of Navy Suicides, 5G, and Quantum Radar

by Joseph P. Farrell

September 26, 2019

Source

You may recall a few days ago I blogged about what's happening with the U.S. Navy's aircraft carriers, how many carrier groups had sortied without their carrier, and how many of them were being refit with new electronic warfare packages. There was much speculation about what these retrofits might be, from sophisticated anti-missile shields, to jamming equipment, and so on.

There may have been a development, in this story, and a partial drawing back of the veil, according to these articles shared by F.L.M., to whom I would like to extend a big thank you, especially for sending them with a bit of high octane speculation of his own, which I shall do my best to reprise here, because I think that speculation may be on to something. But first, here are the articles:

Investigators probing four suicides involving carrier crew

Acquisition Safety – Radio Frequency Radiation \(RFR\) Hazards

You'll note that the first article mentions a string of suicides involving four crew members of the USS George H.W. Bush, which occurred more or less within the same time frame while the carrier is in dry dock undergoing maintenance, two of them on the same day. What's interesting about them is that all four were crew involved in very serious duties:

Norfolk Police began investigating the death of Machinist's

Mate 3rd Class Robert John Bartulewicz III on July 16. His was the first suicide involving a Bush crew member since late 2017, Cragg said.

Last week, authorities in Norfolk and Portsmouth ruled three more deaths – one on Sept. 14, two on Sept. 19 – as suicides: Chief Electronics Technician (Nuclear) James Harold Shelton, Aviation Ordnanceman 1st Class Vincent Michael Forline and Airman Ethan Thomas Lee Stuart.

No deaths occurred on the carrier, which is at Norfolk Naval Shipyard undergoing 28 months of Docking Planned Incremental Availability repairs. (Emphases added)

What's intriguing here is that one of the unfortunate crew members was an ordnanceman, and the other an electronics technician, apparently involved with the nuclear propulsion of the vessel.

Checking things out, F.L.M. found the second article linked about, and that article contains some intriguing admissions, for repeatedly the article warns about thermal heating in biological tissue when working around newer radar and communications systems. This much has been known for some time, and is no big secret. But then it also mentions that on occasions, these systems can detonate ordnance with electronic triggers. (Russian rocket, munitions plant, and biotech laboratories explosions anyone?) If that's the case, might a similar effect somehow be achieved at distance, say, on incoming missiles? Perhaps. What's intriguing about the second article – and F.L.M. noted what you probably saw as well – there is a picture of a crewman working on an antenna (right next to the warnings in the article about thermal cooking of biological tissue and “accidental” detonations of ordnance) that looks quite similar not only to cellular towers, but also to 5G towers, which, additionally, look very much like quantum radar antennae. That observation alone should give one pause, because F.L.M. wondered, and I have to wonder too, whether or not the real purpose of 5G rollout might be a disguise for something very different.

With the recent Russian and Chinese advances in anti-ship missile capabilities, are we now looking at potential confirmation of those suspicions that the American carrier fleet is being equipped with some sophisticated form of electromagnetic defense, capable of detonating ordnance? If so, then in addition to the standard problems of working around radar and microwave equipment and the thermal damage to biological tissue, might we be looking at unintended emotional and mental consequences of working in an environment where crew are basically immersed in an electromagnetic soup, to the extent that the sudden removal of that environment might cause severe mental reactions including suicidal depression? Or worse, are we looking at yet another inhuman experiment in mind manipulation, and are these retrofits of “electronics” on the carriers something more than just an exotic missile defense, but perhaps also a tool of long distance mind manipulation technology?

To be sure, that’s all high octane speculation. But regular readers of this website will recall that my first suspicions after learning of the USS Fitzgerald incident in Japanese waters were that one might be looking at an incident not only of sophisticated jamming, but perhaps also of mind manipulation, technologies.

Regardless of the truth or falsehood of our speculations, I suspect we’ve just been given another strong clue...

Facebook's Connection to Mind Reading & Mind Control Technology

Facebook and the EEG Dictionary

by Joseph P. Farrell

August 8, 2019

In my book Microcosm and Medium (available on Lulu print-on-demand books), I recounted the story of Gloria Naylor. Briefly, Ms. Naylor told a story of unbelievable harassment, which included hearing conversations in her head, urging her to kill herself. Being a successful authoress, with everything to live for, these conversations disturbed her, and she sought counseling, and was prescribed medications.

But the conversations continued, and neither the counseling nor the drugs seemed to help. over the course of a few weeks, she began to notice something very "odd" about those conversations: they only seemed to occur in certain places in her home. She made this discovery one evening when lying in bed trying to go to sleep. The “conversations” immediately started. She got out of bed, and moved across the room, and the “conversation” immediately stopped, only to resume again after a few minutes in her new location. Again, she moved, and the “conversation” stopped. Naylor came to an astonishing conclusion: she reasoned that someone was using a technology against her, and that it had to be aimed at her. When she moved, she moved out of the “target zone,” and hence the conversations would momentarily cease.

Intrigued, Naylor investigated mind manipulation technologies, and made two astonishing discoveries: (1) they not only were possible, but remote methods had been patented that could literally “beam” into one’s brain, hence making her observations that her “conversation” was not a psychological disorder, but that someone was deliberately targeting her; and (2) that they actually had “dictionaries” based on brain waves that could be used to “decode” an individual’s thoughts via their brain wave, but that could also project a conversation into an individual, based on modulating specific brainwave templates for specific words onto a carrier wave, such as a microwave.

Naylor’s story intrigued me, not only for its fantastic and (some would say) incredible nature, but because the basic concepts behind it were possible. I investigated further and discovered that indeed work on reading brainwave patterns for specific words had been done, and a simple “electroencephalographic dictionary” of brainwave patterns had been compiled for about 2,000 words, in the 1970s. This research I summarized in Microcosm and Medium.

With that context in mind, consider this story shared by E.J.:

Facebook is funding brain experiments to create a device that reads your mind

Pay attention to the implications of these opening statements:

In 2017, Facebook announced that it wanted to create a headband that would let people type at a speed of 100 words per minute, just by thinking.

Now, a little over two years later, the social-media giant is revealing that it has been financing extensive university research on human volunteers.

Today, some of that research was described in a scientific paper from the University of California, San Francisco, where researchers have been developing “speech decoders” able to determine what people are trying to say by analyzing their brain signals.

The research is important because it could help show whether a wearable brain-control device is feasible and because it is an early example of a giant tech company being involved in getting hold of data directly from people’s minds.

To some neuro-ethicists, that means we are going to need some rules, and fast, about how brain data is collected, stored, and used.(Emphasis added)

While the concerns about privacy – especially with a company like Facebook – are legitimate, it’s with the implications of that first statement that we are concerned in today’s high octane speculation, for a device that would allow people to “type at a speed of 100 words per minute, just by thinking,” means two things: (1) it requires the concept of the electroencephalographic dictionary to even make the technology work, and (2) to be able to work with the public implies that that electroencephalographic dictionary has now grown in its vocabulary to much more than a meager 2,000 words. And obviously, as Ms. Naylor experienced, and as the article implies, such a technology could be a two-way door, not only from the individual “typing” thoughts, but also into that individual.

But there's another lesson here, another implication. As noted, this "electroencephalographic dictionary" work began in the 1970s. That, at least, is the publicly available information, though it does not strain reason to assume the research began in secrecy prior to that. But even then, that 1970s research was not "public" in the sense that it was widely known outside the narrow professional group conducting and/or funding that research. So stop and consider: from the 1970s, to this now fully public article and its implications in 2019, is a period of 49 years, which we can "round up" to a nice even 50 years. In other words, there's been a lag of about half a century between the actual development of a capability that was clearly done in the "black projects world," and its initial appearance as a concept available to the wide public. And that's not factoring in the possible and in my opinion probable exploration of that capability entirely in secret for any number of years before its acknowledgement to the professional public.

Half a century.

How Google Threatens Your Children

Source: Mercola

by Dr. Joseph Mercola

August 6, 2019

STORY AT-A-GLANCE

- More than half of American K-12 schools use Chromebooks and Google apps, allowing Google to build brand loyalty from an early age
- Google's primary business is tracking, compiling, storing and selling personal data. By capturing children at an early age, it will be able to build the most comprehensive personality profiles of the population ever conceived
- By the time these children have grown into adulthood, every single preference, thought, belief and proclivity will be known about them, which will make them extremely vulnerable to manipulation
- Google allows hundreds of third-party software developers to access the emails of Gmail users, and they're not just using software to scan for keywords. In some cases, employees are actually reading the emails
- By default, Google Chrome allows any and all tracker cookies to follow your every move online

Google is without a doubt the largest and clearest monopoly on the planet. It dominates online searches and advertising, which in and of itself leads to automatic bias. As noted by Google's founders Sergey Brin and Lawrence Page in their 1998 paper, "The Anatomy of a Large-Scale Hypertextual Web Search Engine," "... [W]e expect that advertising funded search engines will be inherently biased towards the advertisers and away from the needs of consumers."

Google has also infiltrated many other areas of our day-to-day lives, having acquired dozens of other companies you might not realize belong to Google or its parent company, Alphabet.

Among the most well-known are YouTube, the largest video platform on the web, and Android, one of the most popular operating systems worldwide. Google also has significant influence over urban development, health care and childhood education.

Google has become ubiquitous in American classrooms

Google's influence over young children has been a concern for years. As noted in a 2014 article in the International Business Times, "How Google Took Over the American Classroom and Is Creating a Gmail generation":

"Google apps, services and increasingly, Chromebooks, have become ubiquitous in the American classroom and it's not hard to understand why: they require no expensive hardware, they never need to be updated, and they're free, an important consideration for cash-strapped districts ...

South Carolina's Richland School District 2 boasts 22,000 Chromebooks, which covers a student populace nearing 27,000, who also use Google Apps.

That makes for a sizeable student population that will become accustomed to utilizing Google services ... 'Education is at the core of Google's mission – to remove the four walls of the classroom and make the world's information accessible to all students,' a Google spokeswoman said."

Google will know everything about your child

However, for all its conveniences, Google poses a very real threat to all these children. As noted in a 2017 article in The New York Times – which details the strategic moves that allowed Google to take over the American classroom – “schools may be giving Google more than they are getting: generations of future customers.”

In 2012, less than 1% of the tablets and laptops used in the U.S. school system were Google Chromebooks. By 2015, more than half the devices sold to K-12 schools were Chromebooks, equipped with a free suite of Google apps and education-specific programs.

When you consider Google's primary business is tracking, compiling, storing and selling personal data, by capturing children at an early age, it will be able to build the most comprehensive personality profiles of the population ever conceived – and there's no opt-out feature for this data gathering. As reported by The Washington Post in 2015:

“... [I]n a filing with the Federal Trade Commission, the Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) argued Google is tracking nearly everything students are doing when they are signed into their Google accounts and, in some cases, using that information to build profiles and serve them targeted ads in certain Google programs.”

By the time these children have grown into adulthood, every single preference, thought, belief and proclivity will be known about them, which will make them extremely vulnerable to manipulation, not only through targeted advertising but also through what might be called customized censorship or targeted social engineering – in essence, the strategy of tailoring the information any given individual can see in order to shape and mold their prejudices and ideas. The Washington Post writes:

“Google makes $30 per device by selling management services for the millions of Chromebooks that ship to schools. But by habituating students to its offerings at a young age, Google obtains something much more valuable.

Every year, several million American students graduate from high school. And not only does Google make it easy for those who have school Google accounts to upload their trove of school Gmail, Docs and other files to regular Google consumer accounts – but schools encourage them to do so ...

That doesn't sit well with some parents. They warn that Google could profit by using personal details from their children's school email to build more powerful marketing profiles of them as young adults ...

Unlike Apple or Microsoft, which make money primarily by selling devices or software services, Google derives most of its revenue from online advertising – much of it targeted through sophisticated use of people's data ...

‘Unless we know what is collected, why it is collected, how it is used and a review of it is possible, we can never understand with certainty how this information could be used to help or hurt a kid,’ said Bill Fitzgerald of Common Sense Media, a children's advocacy group, who vets the security and privacy of classroom apps.”

Google teaches children to trust the least trustworthy

While most adults are now at least somewhat aware that Google is spying on their every move and selling their personal data, children are simply too young to understand the long-term ramifications of this pervasive data gathering. (To get an idea of the kind of information tracked and stored, see “What Kind of Information Does Google and Facebook Have on You?”)

Children are extremely vulnerable to influence of all kinds, and Google is taking full advantage of this. As pointed out by a Berkeley, California, teacher in a May 2018 article in The Outline:

“The video game Interland is part of Google’s ‘Be Internet Awesome’ curriculum aimed at ‘helping kids be safe, confident explorers of the online world’ ... The game’s release was met with positive reviews that completely miss the point ...

Interland sells to kids the message that Google is a trustworthy arbiter of online safety and privacy. And Interland is only one of many ways this message has become increasingly embedded in K-12 school classrooms ...

Beyond datamining, some parents and privacy advocates have expressed concern that even when kids are explicitly taught how to safeguard their personal information online, school-mandated Chromebooks and Google accounts implicitly train kids to accept surveillance and hand over personal information ...

Be Internet Awesome implicitly signals to students that Google is synonymous with privacy and safety. By focusing solely on personal choices, the program suggests that the power to protect personal information lies entirely within one’s own hands and locates responsibility for doing so with the individual.

There’s nothing wrong with telling students not to send money to someone claiming to be a Nigerian prince but for most people, most of the time, there is greater danger in all the usual and perfectly legal ways of persuading us to part with our money ...

[J]ust as the greater threat to our privacy, as anyone compromised in the Experian hack can tell you, comes not from, or not only from, crappy passwords but from numerous ways we are tracked without our permission or knowledge."

Google and third parties have access to your Gmail

One particularly offensive invasion of privacy is Google's snooping into Gmail emails. According to a July 2018 Wall Street Journal report, Google allows hundreds of third-party software developers to access the emails of Gmail users, and they're not necessarily just using software to scan for keywords. In some cases, employees are actually going in and reading the emails.

"One of those companies is Return Path Inc., which collects data for marketers by scanning the inboxes of more than two million people who have signed up for one of the free apps in Return Path's partner network using a Gmail, Microsoft Corp. or Yahoo email address," The Wall Street Journal writes.

"Computers normally do the scanning, analyzing about 100 million emails a day. At one point about two years ago, Return Path employees read about 8,000 unredacted emails to help train the company's software, people familiar with the episode say.

In another case, employees of Edison Software, another Gmail developer that makes a mobile app for reading and organizing email, personally reviewed the emails of hundreds of users to build a new feature, says Mikael Berner, the company's CEO.

Letting employees read user emails has become 'common practice' for companies that collect this type of data, says Thede Loder, the former chief technology officer at eDataSource Inc. ... Neither Return Path nor Edison asked users specifically whether it could read their emails. Both companies say the practice is covered by their user agreement ...

Neither Return Path nor Edison mentions the possibility of humans viewing users' emails in their privacy policies. Mr. Berner says he believes Edison's privacy policy covers this practice by telling users the company collects and stores personal messages to improve its artificial-intelligence algorithms."

According to The Wall Street Journal, Gmail has 1.4 billion users worldwide – “more users than the next 25 largest email providers combined.” While Google claims to have stopped scanning Gmail emails for the purpose of creating targeted advertising after being slapped with a class-action lawsuit in 2017, accusing the company of illegal wiretapping, it seems quite clear privacy is not a guarantee when using Gmail for your personal or business correspondence.

Making matters worse, while Google's developer agreement does not allow third-parties to store, make permanent copies of, or expose a user's private data, Google doesn't emphasize enforcement of those policies, developers told The Wall Street Journal.

Is Google developing dossiers on children? You bet

Getting back to your children, is Google developing personality dossiers on them? According to a 2017 report by the Electronic Frontier Foundation, a nonprofit focused on “defending civil liberties in the digital world,” the answer is yes. As reported in its executive summary:

“Throughout EFF’s investigation over the past two years, we have found that educational technology services often collect far more information on kids than is necessary and store this information indefinitely.

This privacy-implicating information goes beyond personally identifying information (PII) like name and date of birth, and can include browsing history, search terms, location data, contact lists, and behavioral information.

Some programs upload this student data to the cloud automatically and by default. All of this often happens without the awareness or consent of students and their families.

In short, technology providers are spying on students – and school districts, which often provide inadequate privacy policies or no privacy policy at all, are unwittingly helping them do it.”

Your child’s school may be spying on your home life too

PJ Media reports there have also been incidents where school employees have remotely accessed students’ computers while in their homes. This surprising trend was revealed by the ACLU in the summer of 2017. In a June 15 article on UCLA.org, Marcela Betancur writes:

“Most Rhode Island school districts participate in ‘1-1’ programs – in which third parties provide free laptop devices to students for the school year ... We recently found out that most of the state’s participating schools give themselves the ability to remotely spy on their students through these loaned devices.

We published our findings early this month in a report titled ‘High School Non-Confidential: How School-Loaned Computers

May Be Peering Into Your Home' ... The report found that more than 60 percent of Rhode Island school districts today participate in the 1-1 program.

It also discovered that a majority of those districts allow school officials or administrators to remotely access the device – while a student is at home, without their knowledge, and without any suspicion of misconduct.

We know from an outrageous Pennsylvania case, in which school administrators were found to have activated webcams to spy on students in their homes, that this obvious privacy concern is not hypothetical. Yet only six districts specifically stated in their policies that they would not remotely access the webcams or microphones of devices distributed through the programs.”

When it comes to potential privacy invasions by your child's school, you'll need to address such concerns with school administrators. There are, however, some ways to limit the amount of information Google can gather on your child. In its January 23, 2018, issue under “How to keep Google From Spying on Your Kid's Chromebook,” Laptop Magazine provides detailed instructions on which settings to check or uncheck to minimize the data flow.

Google Chrome is an open-door invitation for spying

If you value your privacy at all you will want to STOP USING CHROME immediately. I installed the Brave browser earlier this year and it already has blocked one quarter million ads and 34,000 trackers.

In a June 21, 2019, article, Washington Post technology columnist Geoffrey Fowler highlights the problems with Google Chrome specifically, noting that in one weeklong web surfing experiment, Chrome “ushered more than 11,000 tracker cookies into our browser,” and that “Seen from the inside, [Google’s] Chrome browser looks a lot like surveillance software.”

The experiment led Fowler to switch to Mozilla’s Firefox browser, in which privacy protection is the default. In Fowler’s weeklong test, Firefox automatically blocked 11,189 tracker requests – cookies that companies and data tracking firms use to gather information about the websites you visit in order to build your personality profile.

Surprisingly, Fowler discovered tracking cookies from websites “you would think would be private,” such as Aetna and the Federal Student Aid department. Both “surreptitiously told the data giants every time I pulled up the insurance and loan service’s log-in pages,” Fowler writes.

He also discovered that Chrome automatically logs you in whenever you use Gmail, thereby allowing Google to track your activity and collect information for personalized ads without your knowledge (since you didn’t specifically log in). When doing an online search using Chrome on your Android cellphone, it also shares your location with Google, even if you’ve turned off location sharing.

“At a minimum, Web snooping can be annoying. Cookies are how a pair of pants you look at in one site end up following you around in ads elsewhere. More fundamentally, your Web history – like the color of your underpants – ain’t nobody’s business but your own. Letting anyone collect that data leaves it ripe for abuse by bullies, spies and hackers,” Fowler writes, adding:

“There are ways to defang Chrome, which is much more complicated than just using ‘Incognito Mode.’ But it’s much easier to switch to a browser not owned by an advertising company ... I’ve chosen Firefox, which works across phones, tablets, PCs and Macs. Apple’s Safari is also a good option on Macs, iPhones and iPads, and the niche Brave browser goes even further in trying to jam the ad-tech industry.”

Google plan: Dictate outcome of 2020 presidential election

Google (or more accurately, Alphabet, the rebranded parent company that houses all of the various divisions) has become a gigantic octopus-like super entity, the tentacles of which reach into government, food production, health care, education, military applications and the creation of AIs that may run more or less independently.

A key component of many of these enterprises is data – your personal usage data; the tracking of every webpage you’ve ever visited and every single thought you’ve ever written on a Google-enabled device, along with geo tracking your every move.

Ultimately, what can be done with that kind of information, besides personalized advertising? How might it be used in combination with military AI-equipped robots? How might it be used to influence your health care decisions? How might it be used to influence your lifestyle decisions?

How might (or is) it used to shape politics and society at large? As reported June 24, 2019, by Project Veritas, undercover footage shows Google executive Jen Gennai making statements that raise strong suspicions about the company’s intent to manipulate the 2020 U.S. presidential elections. The video caught the attention of U.S. Rep. Louie Gohmert, R-Texas, who issued a statement:

“This video shows Google’s biases are now a threat to a free and fair election, all while they hide behind the immunity given by Congress years ago when they were supposed to be a simple ‘town square’ where everyone’s voice could be heard without biased results.

In fact, Google references a significant role they see themselves fulfilling in the 2020 elections. This discovery should set off alarm bells throughout the country. It is no secret that Google has a political agenda. Multiple brave tech insiders have stepped forward and exposed Google's censorship of content and specialized algorithms.

This media giant's 'social justice narrative' should distress all Americans who value a free and open society. Google should not be deciding whether content is important or trivial and they most assuredly should not be meddling in our election process. They need their immunity stripped and to be properly pursued by class action lawsuits by those they have knowingly harmed."

As discussed in "Google Buries Mercola in Their Latest Search Engine Update" Part 1 and Part 2, the holistic health community as a whole has most definitely been harmed by Google's censorship and search algorithms, but we're likely just the beginning. Given time, there's no doubt in my mind the online censorship will spread across all fields of endeavor, eliminating views deemed to be in opposition to its goals and financial aims.

It's time to dethrone Google

Today, being a conscious consumer includes making wise, informed decisions about technology. Anyone who has spent even a small amount of time pondering the ramifications of Google's ever-growing monopoly over our day-to-day lives is likely to shudder at the possibilities, and agree that we cannot allow this to continue. To be part of the solution, I encourage you to take the following actions:

Boycott Google by avoiding any and all Google products:

- Stop using Google search engines. Alternatives include DuckDuckGo and Startpage
- Uninstall Google Chrome and use Brave or Opera browser instead, available for all computers and mobile devices. From a security perspective, Opera is far superior to Chrome and offers a free VPN service (virtual private network) to further preserve your privacy
- If you have a Gmail account, try a non-Google email service such as ProtonMail, an encrypted email service based in Switzerland
- Stop using Google docs. Digital Trends has published an article suggesting a number of alternatives
- If you're a high school student, do not convert the Google accounts you created as a student into personal accounts
- Sign the “Don't be evil” petition created by Citizens Against Monopoly

TRANSCRIPT

We all know the old trope of the tinfoil hat wearing conspiracy theorist who believes crazy things like “the government is spying on us” and “the military is spraying things in the sky” and “the CIA ships in the drugs.”

Except those things aren’t so crazy after all. As it turns out, many of the old “conspiracy theorist” fantasies are actually true.

Here are five examples of things that were once derided as zany conspiracy paranoia and are now accepted as mundane historical fact.

#1 – The CIA Ships in the Drugs

The Central Intelligence Agency, the most well-known branch of America’s shadowy intelligence community, features in a number of popular conspiracy theories. One of the theories about the CIA's dirty dealings that has been around for decades is that the agency helps bring illegal drugs into the United States.

But this isn't just a theory. In fact, the CIA has been involved in drug running from its very inception.

Just months after its creation in 1947, the agency began a relationship with the Corsican mafia that controlled the Old Port of Marseille in post-war France. That relationship involved a quid pro quo: The CIA would protect the mafia if the mafia would keep the Communists from taking control of the port. In this case "protecting the mafia" meant protecting their most lucrative business, which just happened to be smuggling heroin into the United States. This "French Connection" thrived for decades, with the majority of the heroin in the US in the post-war period coming via France under the watchful eye of the CIA.

From the Korean War to the Vietnam War and beyond, CIA-supported warlords used CIA-run airlines like Air America to ship heroin from the "Golden Triangle" at the borders of Thailand, Laos, and Myanmar. As even The New York Times reported, the agency prevented the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs from monitoring drug trafficking in the region. They even stopped an investigation into "an Air America DC-3 loaded with heroin packed into boxes of Tide soap powder" that had been seized on its way to the US.

In the 1980s yet more agency involvement in drug smuggling rings came to light. This time it was drug traffickers connected to the Contras in Nicaragua that received help from the agency. After the Contra-connected trafficking came to light, a Senate investigation headed by Senator John Kerry confirmed government complicity in the drug trade.

BOB MCKEOWN: As for the CIA, it's denied ever aiding or condoning drug smuggling.

JOHN KERRY: Reports were reaching the highest councils of our government, in the White House and in the Justice Department. There is no question of that. I can document that.

MCKEOWN: The White House and Justice Department disputed Kerry's report at the time. But he still believes some government officials turned a blind eye toward drug dealing in the mid-1980s, after the time at the heart of Gary Webb's stories.*

SOURCE: A Crack in the Story – NBC Dateline \(13 June 1997\)*

In the 1990s, award-winning journalist Gary Webb traced the Contras' CIA-protected backers to cocaine shipments into the US, and, ultimately, to the crack epidemic of the 1980s.

Stories of CIA drug running continue to be covered up almost as quickly as they are exposed, from the CIA Beech 200 that was apprehended in Nicaragua with 1100 kilos of cocaine to the crash of a Grumman Gulfstream II that had been used for CIA rendition flights that was carrying 3.3 tons of Colombian cocaine. Then there's the CIA's relationship with Afghan drug warlord Ahmed Wali Karzai in Afghanistan and the admission that the Sinaloa cartel was aided by US agencies and the recent confession that famed Colombian drug king Pablo Escobar worked for the CIA.

At this point, the fact that the Central Intelligence Agency has facilitated drug running into the United States is one of the worst kept secrets in history.

MICHAEL RUPPERT: I will tell you, Director Deutch, as a former Los Angeles police narcotics detective that the agency has dealt drugs throughout this country for a long time.*

SOURCE: Michael Ruppert Confronts CIA Director John Deutch*

#2 – The government is spraying us from the skies

It is incumbent on everyone who wishes to remain in the respectable, polite circles of society that they deride all chemtrail theorists as kooky fringe-nut wingbats (or whatever the ad hominem du jour is). I mean, who could actually believe that the government would ever coordinate a program to spray toxic chemicals on unwitting citizens?

Except, of course, for the pesky little fact that the US government has done precisely that. Repeatedly, in fact.

Like in the San Francisco Bay Area in 1950. The US Navy conducted an experiment they codenamed "Operation Sea-Spray," in which they secretly sprayed the population with *Serratia marcescens*, a "rod-shaped gram-negative bacteria" that just happens to be a human pathogen.

And what did the Navy hope to accomplish with this experiment? Why, to "determine the susceptibility of a big city like San Francisco to a bioweapon attack by terrorists," of course.

And what did they actually accomplish? The death of at least one person and the hospitalization of many others.

Which, I suppose, answers the experimenters' question, doesn't it? Are San Franciscans susceptible to a bioweapon attack by terrorists? Well, yes, evidently . . . assuming by the word "terrorist" you mean the US Navy.

So surely this type of thing was just a one-off. They never tried something like this before or since, right? . . . Right?

. . . Oh, of course they did.

Like in 1953, when "the U.S. Army secretly dumped a carcinogen on unknowing Canadians in Winnipeg and Alberta" as part of a cold war weapons test.

In fact, in 1977 the U.S. Army that they "conducted 239 germ warfare tests in open air between 1949 and 1969," using the public as human guinea pigs in New York, San Francisco, Key

But don't worry, everyone. I'm sure the government wouldn't be doing anything like this to the unaware masses today. That's just crazy talk.

#3 – Governments stage terror attacks

Over the last decade internet conspiracy analysts have brought the term “false flag” to the public consciousness.

In naval warfare, a “false flag” refers to an attack where a vessel flies a flag other than their true battle flag before engaging their enemy. It is a trick, designed to deceive the enemy about the true nature and origin of an attack, and it has been used over and over by government after government for hundreds of years in order to motivate their people for war.

In the 1780s, Swedish King Gustav III—looking to start a war with Russia in order to shore up his own domestic political power—dressed some of his own troops in Russian military uniforms and ordered them to attack a Swedish outpost on the Russian border. The ruse worked, and the Swedes, outraged at this supposedly “Russian” attack, gave the king the authority to launch a “defensive” war.

In 1931, the Japanese were looking for a pretext to invade Manchuria. On September 18th of that year, a Lieutenant in the Imperial Japanese Army detonated a small amount of TNT along a Japanese-owned railway in the Manchurian city of Mukden. The act was blamed on Chinese dissidents and used to justify the occupation of Manchuria just six months later. When the deception was later exposed, Japan was diplomatically shunned and forced to withdraw from the League of Nations.

In 1954, the Israelis hired a number of Egyptian Jews to plant bombs in American and British cinemas, libraries, and other civilian targets to be blamed on the Muslim Brotherhood or other malcontents. The plan, known as the Lavon Affair, was part of an effort to convince the British to retain their military presence in the occupied Suez Canal zone. Several bombings took place, but the British were ultimately forced out after Nasser nationalized the canal in 1956.

In August 1964, the USS Maddox, a US destroyer on patrol in the Gulf of Tonkin, believed it had come under attack from North Vietnamese Navy torpedo boats, engaging in evasive action and returning fire. The incident led to the Gulf of Tonkin resolution authorizing President Johnson to begin open warfare in Vietnam. It was later admitted that no attack had occurred, and in 2005 it was revealed that the NSA had manipulated their information to make it look like an attack had taken place.

In June 1967, the Israelis attacked the USS Liberty, a US Navy technical research ship conducting maneuvers off the coast of Egypt. The ship was strafed relentlessly for hours in an attempt to blame the attack on Egypt and draw the Americans into the Six Day War, but amazingly the crew managed to keep the ship afloat. In 2007, newly released NSA intercepts confirmed that the Israelis knew they were attacking an American ship, not an Egyptian ship as their cover story has maintained.

In the fall of 1999, a wave of bloody apartment bombings swept through Russian cities, killing 293 people and causing widespread panic. Although blamed on Chechen terrorists, later that month FSB agents were caught planting the exact same type of bombs as in the other blasts. The government claimed that the FSB bomb was part of a “security exercise” but the terror hysteria of the apartment bombings were used to justify Russian aggression in Chechnya and win public approval for a full-scale war. Russian troops entered Chechnya the next month.

In 2001, attacks in New York and Washington are blamed on Al Qaeda as a pretext for invading Afghanistan. In the months leading up to the event, American negotiators had warned Afghanistan’s Taliban that they were interested in securing right of way for proposed pipeline projects, and the US would achieve this with either a carpet of gold or a carpet of bombs. The Bush administration’s first major national security directive, NSPD-9, a full-scale battle plan for the invasion of Afghanistan, including command and control, air and ground forces, and logistics, was drafted and sitting on the President’s desk to be signed off on September 4, 2001, seven days before the 9/11 attacks. The invasion proceeded as planned in October.

Naturally, mainstream commentators have to pretend that “false flags” and staged terror incidents are ludicrous flights of fancy that have no historical precedent . . . unless they’re talking about one of their enemies, like Russia, staging a false flag incident. Then it’s perfectly acceptable.

#4 – The CIA ran mind control experiments on unwitting Americans

Ever hear the “theory” that the government abducted people against their will and experimented on them to study mind control techniques and mind-altering chemicals? Well, it isn’t a theory, it’s a documented fact. The US government did run just such a program, dubbed Project MKULTRA, and it was exposed in the 1970s. . . or at least parts of it were.

What we don't know about Project MKULTRA and its affiliated subprojects could probably fill several warehouses with books, but what we do know is voluminous (and scary) enough. The formerly top-secret program was as horrific as any dystopian fantasy ever devised . . . and is now openly acknowledged and documented.

Even the Wikipedia article on the subject admits that the project was completely illegal, employed unwitting test subjects, and attempted to “manipulate people’s mental states and alter brain functions through the “surreptitious administration of drugs (especially LSD) and other chemicals, hypnosis, sensory deprivation, isolation, verbal and sexual abuse (including the sexual abuse of children), and other forms of torture.”

Some aspects of the MKULTRA nightmare are relatively well-known by now.

One series of experiments, presided over by Sidney Gottlieb, involved administering LSD to unwitting Americans, including mental patients, prisoners, drug addicts and prostitutes. This included “Operation Midnight Climax” in which unsuspecting men were drugged and lured to CIA safe houses by prostitutes on the CIA payroll. Their sexual activity was monitored behind one-way mirrors and used to study the effect of sexual blackmail and the use of mind-altering substances in field operations.

Another experiment, dubbed MKULTRA Subproject 68, was overseen by the esteemed psychiatrist Dr. Ewen Cameron. This subproject involved Dr. Cameron using LSD, paralytic drugs, electroshock therapy and drug-induced comas to attempt to wipe patients’ memories and reprogram their psyche. When brought to light, the program was identified as an attempt to refine methods of medical torture for the purpose of extracting information from unwilling sources and condemned. Lawsuits regarding the blatantly illegal experimentation conducted by Cameron continue to this day.

Yet despite CIA assurances that the program was scrapped in 1973 ("would the CIA ever lie to us?"), documentary evidence continues to emerge that the program was far more extensive and horrific than the public was ever told.

But simply pointing to the documented horrors that took place during the officially acknowledged period of the officially acknowledged program's officially acknowledged existence is enough to make even the most stubborn conspiracy deniers squirm in their seats.

DOCTOR: I'm going to give you this cup which contains lysergic acid 100 micrograms.

NARRATOR: That's "acid." Characterized by hallucinations, illusions, distortions of perception and thinking.

NEWS ANCHOR: John Gittinger, recently retired chief psychologist for the CIA.

GITTINGER: You could disable a whole city by putting a very small amount in our water supply.

DYKES: Everything from prostitution studies to poisons to top-secret weapons like the heart attack gun grabbed headlines with the sensational accounts of the CIA's sketchy techniques.

SENATOR: You've brought with you some of those devices which would have enabled the CIA to use this poison for . . .

CIA REPRESENTATIVE: We have indeed.

SENATOR: . . . for killing people?

NEWS ANCHOR 2: Good evening. The White House disclosed today that the CIA's drug testing program on unsuspecting Americans had been more expensive than the agency had admitted.

SPEAKER: . . . CIA secretly funneled money through scores of research foundations, colleges, hospitals, and clinics, including a $375,000 grant through the Shifter [?] Research Fund here in Washington.

DYKES: The complex and compartmentalized management of such a large project through front groups and with the participation of countless agencies and institutions to carry out secret research should be a testament to just how sophisticated and shadowy government science had become.

SPEAKER 2: They're names of doctors, they're names of officials, they're names of former and present CIA officials who were involved, they're names of hospitals. And depending on how you treat it, it could be sensational.

#5 – Chemicals are turning the friggin' frogs . . . female

You've probably seen the memes about it. It's one of the best known and most parodied conspiracy memes of recent years, constantly held up as an example of how utterly deranged and off base-online conspiracy theorists are. *MEME. After all, everyone knows that chemicals in the water aren't turning the frogs gay. They're turning them female.

Reports began to emerge on this phenomenon a decade ago, like this one from LiveScience: "Pesticide Turns Male Frogs into Females," which points out that scientific research is demonstrating that "a commonly used pesticide known as atrazine can turn male frogs into females that are successfully able to reproduce.”

Atrazine, it turns out, is a weed killer used primarily on corn crops, and can cause “sexual abnormalities” in frogs, such as hermaphroditism (having both male and female sex organs). The study from 2010 further discovered that atrazine’s effects are long-lasting and can influence reproduction in amphibians.

The results suggest that atrazine could have potentially harmful effects on populations of amphibians, animals that are already experiencing a global decline. And despite the steady flow of funny memes this observation has generated, this is no laughing matter. As study author Tyrone B. Hayes of the University of California, Berkeley explains, the study suggests that atrazine—which is banned in Europe—could have potentially harmful effects on populations of amphibians, animals that are already experiencing a global decline.

Though there’s no mention of the frogs’ sexual preferences, pesticides are admittedly bending the genders of amphibians. And to top it all off, since atrazine interferes with the production of the sex hormone estrogen, present in people and frogs, the findings could have implications for humans as well.

But it isn’t just atrazine. Over the last century, mass manufacturing of plastics and other products have meant that our environment is now awash in chemicals called “endocrine disrupters” which, a growing body of research suggests, interferes with sperm production and may impair human fertilization. These chemicals may be one of the reasons that sperm counts are undergoing a dramatic drop in developed countries and other issues with men’s health, including “testicular cancer, undescended testes and low sperm count.”

That’s actually a pretty big deal. But I guess if you want to make trendy hipsters laugh, just tell them these completely admitted scientific facts about the pesticides that are wreaking untold havoc on our environment and then do your best impression of a loud-mouthed Texan ranting about gay frogs. You'll have your friends in stitches. Just don't say it's a theory.

In Conclusion...

In truth, there are many many more examples of conspiracy "theories" that turned out to be true, from the US government knowingly injecting poor black sharecroppers with syphilis to the CIA heart attack gun to the "anonymous" letter that the FBI wrote to Martin Luther King urging him to kill himself.

TRANSCRIPT

In 1961, a psychologist conducted an experiment demonstrating how ordinary men and women could be induced to inflict torture on complete strangers merely because an authority figure had ordered them to do so.

In 2001, the United States government formed the Transportation Security Administration to subject hundreds of millions of air travelers to increasingly humiliating and invasive searches and pat downs.

These two phenomena are not as disconnected as they may seem.

Today we explore The TSA (and other experiments in evil).

This is The Corbett Report.

In the midst of this year's government shutdown, a story began to emerge: the safety of the skies was being threatened by the effect that the shutdown was having on workers of the Transportation Security Administration (TSA).

VICTOR OQUENDO: Good morning Robin, this place is a ghost town. For the second day in a row the security checkpoint here at Terminal B inside of Houston's George Bush Intercontinental Airport is shut down. Those are the ticket counters right there behind me, they are empty as well.

SOURCE: Airport security checkpoints close amid shutdown

JAKE TAPPER: Hundreds of TSA employees, who are working without pay right now, have called out from work this week. At Dallas-Fort Worth alone sick calls are up almost 300%.

SOURCE: Hundreds of TSA employees are calling out sick amid shutdown

DAGEN MCDOWELL: Also, the busiest airport in the world by passenger traffic, the Atlanta Hartsfield Jackson Airport, reported delays of more than an hour at checkpoints at times on Monday.

SOURCE: TSA staffing shortages hit airports amid partial government shutdown

ADRIENNE BAILON: "I was in JFK at 6:30am the other day and they were playing that poopty scoop Kanye song and I felt like I was in the Twilight Zone." So ladies, what do you think about these agents going from TSA to TS-heeeeey? I feel like whistle while you work. OK, you know what I'm saying? You're working without getting paid, at least have a good time doing it but as long as it doesn't get in the way of a very significant and important job, which is the safety of our air.

SOURCE: Government Shutdown: TSA Turns to... Explicit Rap Music?

While the TSA has been sold to the public as a valiant squad of dedicated operatives working diligently to protect “the safety of the air,” this public image could not be further from the truth.

The Transportation Security Administration was formally established in November 2001 under the pretext of “fixing” the system that had “somehow” allowed 19 men with box cutters to supposedly commit the most egregious violation of American airspace in history (aided in no small part by the simultaneous “failure” of the entire American intelligence establishment and the most sophisticated air defense in the world). Originally placed under the Department of Transportation, it was just a matter of months before the administration was transitioned into the newly-created Department of Homeland Security and began turning the relatively benign airport security procedures into an ordeal that traumatizes and humiliates virtually everyone who has to endure it.

FATHER: Rocco, they just gotta check you, OK? It's no big deal.

FATHER: Yeah we're going to go there and eat in a minute. I know. It's kinda weird, but it's no big deal.

SOURCE: TSA Nabs Suspected Al Queda Terrorist At Chicago Airport, A toddler in a wheelchair

GIO BENITEZ: Listen as little Lucy says something it's hard to imagine any 3 year old saying.

LUCY FORCK: I don't want to go to Disney World.

BENITEZ: What made the toddler so distraught her parents say, was this:

TSA AGENT: It is illegal to do that.

BENITEZ: A run in with TSA screeners at Missouri's Lambert St. Louis International Airport.

SOURCE: ***Girl in Wheelchair, 3, Detained by TSA: Caught on Tape***

TSA AGENT: I'm also going to be doing a groin check, which means that I'm going to place my hand on your hip and one on your inner thigh, slowly go up and slide down.

JOHN TYNER: OK.

TSA AGENT: I'm going to do that two times in the front and two times in the back.

TYNER: We can do that out here, but if you touch my junk I'm going to have you arrested.

SOURCE: ***If You Touch My Junk, I'll Have You Arrested – US Airport security***

MELISSA DYKES: I mean, I'm sitting here right now, I'm staring out the window and there's an American flag flying on this entry border thing for the airplane and it's just such a joke. It's just . . . what exactly are we? What has America become?

SOURCE: ***Why I Hate Flying in America...***

If we are to take the establishment of the sprawling TSA bureaucracy and the invasive, degrading airport security procedures it has implemented at face value—that is, even if we accept that the administration was set up to “fix” the holes in airport security—then the entire experiment can be written off as a colossal failure.

Reports of TSA failures to find knives, massive shipments of narcotics, loaded guns, and even the very types of box cutters we are told were used on 9/11 have been so numerous over the years that it would be impossible to enumerate them all. Even just this past month, a passenger was able to sneak a gun onto a Delta flight bound for Tokyo, but the TSA insisted that the security failure had nothing to do with the shutdown; it was just standard TSA incompetence.

Even the government's own testing of TSA procedures has confirmed time and again that the agency fails in providing even the most basic level of security for airline passengers.

In 2006, government investigators found that they were able to slip 75 percent of their fake bombs through checkpoints at LAX, one of the busiest airports in America, and 60% through Chicago O'Hare, one of the busiest airports in the world. A 2008 report from the Government Accountability Office blasted a government program to test for "gaps" in airport security because it failed to follow up on why these failures were occurring. In November of 2011 Congressional investigators issued their own blistering report on the agency, calling it an "enormous, inflexible and distracted bureaucracy" and pointing out that Americans "are no safer today than they were before 9/11" despite the 60 billion dollars that had been wasted on the administration up to that point.

But if we attack the TSA on grounds of incompetence, we risk falling into a carefully-laid trap. Proponents of this governmental monstrosity will argue that what is needed is more money to help the valiant guardians of the sky do their job properly. They will point to the shutdown and the resulting mess at the airports as an example of how vital the administration really is, and how important it is to continue increasing its budget so it can add ever more expensive weaponry to its arsenal of harassment.

No, it is not because of “incompetence” that we must condemn the Orwellian nightmare unfolding at the airports every single day. It is because this security theatre was never meant to keep us safe in the first place. The TSA is not a well-intentioned agency in need of better management or more funding or more highly-trained agents. On the contrary. It is doing precisely what it was created to do. The problem is that most people do not know what it was created to do.

In order to understand the real purpose of this spectacularly successful government agency, we need to revisit the Milgram experiment.

In 1961, psychologist Stanley Milgram conducted a now-famous experiment into the public’s propensity to obey perceived authority figures. In the experiment, ordinary men and women were tricked into administering what they believed to be painful and even fatal electric shocks to complete strangers on the pretense that they were helping a scientist conducting research into memory and learning.

RESEARCHER: We want to find out just what effect different people have on each other as teachers and learners and also what effects punishment will have on learning in this situation.

SOURCE: Obedience \(Dr. Stanley Milgram, 1962\)

But that “memory research” was just a cover story. In fact, both the scientist and the strangers were actors. The only one not in on the sham was the one delivering the shocks. The real experiment was designed to see how far those ordinary men and women would go in inflicting torture on others when commanded by a perceived authority figure.

SUBJECT A: Incorrect. You will now get a shock of 75 volts.

[Applies shock] Soft hair, he kinda did some yelling in there.

RESEARCHER: Continue please.

SOURCE: Obedience \(Dr. Stanley Milgram, 1962\)

The study is famous in the annals of psychology because the results were so completely unexpected. Most psychologists predicted that only a very small percentage of the participants in the study would continue delivering shocks past the point where those shocks could be fatal. Instead, a staggering 65% of the test participants proceeded all the way to the maximum (supposedly lethal) voltage.

SUBJECT B: *That is incorrect. This will be 195 volts.
[Applies shock] The correct one was...*

VICTIM: Let me out of here!

SUBJECT B: Slow dance.

VICTIM: Let me out of here my hearts bothering me. Let me out of here, you have no right to keep me here. Let me out. Let me out of here. Let me out my hearts bothering me!

RESEARCHER: Continue, please. Go on.

SUBJECT B: [Inaudible]

SOURCE: Obedience \(Dr. Stanley Milgram, 1962\)

Let's repeat that. 65% of participants—ordinary men and women who thought they were volunteering for a simple experiment about memory and learning—were willing to deliver what they sincerely believed to be potentially fatal doses of electricity to random strangers simply because an authority figure assured them that it was necessary to continue with the experiment.

VICTIM: You have no right to hold me here!

SUBJECT B: The next phrase is 'Fast' ...

VICTIM: Let me out, let me out, let me out of here!

SUBJECT B: Bird. Car. Train. Plane.

[Silence]

RESEARCHER: Continue, teacher.

SUBJECT B: That is incorrect. This will be 345 [volts]. The correct answer is 'Fast Bird.'

SOURCE: Obedience \(Dr. Stanley Milgram, 1962\)

So now let's look at the TSA's real role. No, they are not there to keep us safe from the scary, turban-wearing Al-CIA-da goblins. But they are running a giant, society-wide, real-world Milgram experiment in obedience training. In this case, though, there are no actors. Real people are really being tortured, molested, degraded and subjected to the most demeaning public humiliation at the hands of badge-wearing authority figures. And this time the subjects of the experiment (the general public) are not being asked to deliver a shock. They are not being asked to participate in the torture, aid in the pat-downs, or help run the body scanners.

Instead, they are being asked not to participate. To sit. To watch. To learn. This is what happens to those who resist. This is what happens to random people who do not resist. This is what happens to 96-year-old WWII veterans. This is what happens to 4-year-olds. This is what happens to pregnant mothers. One day it will probably happen to you. And you, the ordinary men and women who are made to watch these torture sessions from the lengthy line up at the security gate, are expected to do nothing. There is nothing you can do. Nothing you will do.

If the TSA is not an attempt to “keep the skies safe” after all, but a nearly two-decade-long experiment in obedience training, then it cannot be denied that that experiment has been remarkably successful.

REPORTER: The YouTube user who posted this wrote that the agent subjected his kids to the pat downs because he had been selected as usual for a security check because of his name. We shared the video with TSA, the agency offering no comment but directed me to the section of its pat-down policy that says ‘officers will work with parents to resolve any alarms at the checkpoint.’ TSA has modified screening procedures for children 12 and under that reduces the likelihood of a pat-down.

PASSENGER: Well I mean you got to follow the rules but in the same regard I think that I’d probably have some apprehension. I’d be a little bit upset about it.

ETHAN ROSENBERG: I have to do what they’re doing.

REPORTER: What you see in this video is familiar for 10 year old Ethan Rosenberg.

ETHAN’S FATHER: Yes, he has to have a manual pat-down. He has a cochlear implant, a medically implanted device.

REPORTER: Ethan’s dad describes his son’s pat-down every time they fly as not a problem. Though Ethan clues us in on what these kids could be feeling.

ETHAN: Well, sometimes it’s uncomfortable.

SOURCE: TSA search of children causes stir

People watch passively as the molestation and humiliation of strangers unfolds mere steps away from them. No outcry. No protest. No boycotts. No mass movements to stop these scenes from playing out again.

Yes, there was a mass campaign to “Opt Out” of the TSA’s invasive body scanners. A day was set, people were organized, a wave of Thanksgiving flyers were readying themselves to opt out of the procedure and overwhelm the agents with a never-ending stream of people to be patted down. But the TSA, knowing they would have been defeated had such a movement gained ground, chose to turn off the scanners and wave people through on the planned Opt Out Day, and the public, quickly distracted by the next story in the 24/7 news cycle, moved on.

The next time they have to take a flight, those same people who once protested these procedures will step dutifully into line, take off their belt and shoes, and pray that it won't be them next. And unless and until people stop doing nothing and start doing something in the face of these obvious injustices, absolutely none of this will change. And, if people continue doing nothing, within a generation no one will even understand that these scenes are objectionable. That they don't have to happen.

But you see, this is the most surprising part of the Milgram experiment. The one that everyone forgets. The experiment wasn't run once or twice. It was run dozens of times, under all types of circumstances, and a remarkable fact was discovered: The way the experiment was set up determined the extent to which the participants obeyed their instructions. Sometimes the experiment was run so that one subject could watch other subjects participate in the study before they did. And in cases where the first subjects obeyed the psychologist and delivered the shocks, the later subjects would, too.

Yet—and here we get to the real lesson of the Milgram experiment—if the teacher saw other teachers disobey the psychologist and refuse to deliver the shocks, they would disobey, too.

PHILIP ZIMBARDO: Now I said he [Milgram] tested 1,000 subjects. In any one study, it's only 50 or 60. But let's look at the other 16 studies.

In each study, he varies one aspect of the social situation. We call that “experimental variations.” So in study 16, the percentage of people going to 450 volts is 91%. Nine out of 10 people go all the way. Why? In study 16, you come in and they say, “We’re running a little late. Why don’t you sit and wait until the other person finishes?” And you see a confederate looking like you go all the way to the end. In study number 5, only 10 percent go all the way. In study 5, you come in and you see people like you rebel.

That says we are powerful social models for other people. If you model evil behavior, it’s gonna spread to others. If you model good behavior, caring behavior, compassionate behavior, it’s gonna spread in a positive way.

SOURCE: *The Lucifer Effect in Action: My Journey from Evil to Heroism*

This is the surprising conclusion that has been scrubbed from most accounts of the Milgram experiment: Disobedience, once modeled, becomes an option in the mind of the public.

*Remember this the next time you are at the security checkpoint: When you are asked to step into the body scanner, those behind you will be watching. Your choice will make a difference. When someone is being molested at a TSA pat-down and you are witnessing it, those around you will be taking note of your reaction. Your behavior will affect theirs.*

So, what choice will you make? Will you pass or fail this real-world Milgram experiment?

Amairikuhn Kulcher: So Radicalized that Radicals Think Radicals Are ...

Source: Giza Death Star

by Joseph P. Farrell

February 27, 2018

Warning! Rant alert!

This one is nuts, I mean completely, totally, bottom-of-the-barrel nuts. And it's sadly another measure of just what a "kulcherul" swamp Amairikuh – under the "leadership" of its two progressive parties – has become. One of my friend's friends called the fetid putrid swamp that is Amairikuhn kulcher a "stinking, sinking garbage barge." If that's the case, then it's a stinking sinking garbage barge being piloted by lunatics, nitwits, and kooks.

What's more interesting to me is that several readers of this website found this article, and a few drew my attention to it by posting it on my Facebook wall. (A big thank you to all of you, although to be on the safe side, I don't check Facebook regularly, so email articles to me via the contact button on the website.) I find that interesting simply because the general culture is something that people are now following closely.

But back to the lunatics, nitwits, and kooks in charge of piloting the garbage barge. One person who emailed this article to me expressed disbelief and wondered if the article was real. I had to stop and ponder that one, for when I read the article, nothing in it surprised me. That is to say, my “gut reaction” – before I could think about the article – was that it was, indeed, real. And that alone is a sad statement on the garbage barge, because it’s now listing severely to port and by the bow.

Here’s the article(you’ll have to copy and paste):

<http://www.miamiherald.com/news/nation-world/national/article201604224.html>

Yes, that’s right folks, the nuttury of the modern USSA has reached such a state that the radical sign, or square root sign, in mathematics has students thinking in terms of guns. Of course, I suspect that a certain amount of that is to be expected, in a “kulcher” that Doctors of Edubabble has managed to dumb down with their theories incubated in the teacher certification courses in the quackademy and after so many students are drugged into zombies and go on killing sprees. (Yes, there I said it: want to regulate guns? Well, then we need to look long and hard at regulating the daylights out of doctors of edubabble, increasingly Marxist colleges of teacher certification and the goofy kulchers they produce in our schools, and most importantly, psychiatrists and doctors and nurses and big pharma pushing all these drugs on our kids.)

The symbol for the square root of a number, a gun.

Think about that. It sounds goofy, utterly goofy at first, but I contend it carries a deeper significance, a cultural significance, because for people to get into the state of mind to be able to think that, then it’s the whole cultural complex that’s killing people, not just guns. We survived in this country for decades with an armed population – including teenaged boys armed with hunting rifles in their trucks (I know, growing up in South Dakota, I saw them all the time) – and we didn’t go around shooting up schools and schoolchildren. What changed? Drugs... and, I would aver, the feminization of Amairikuhn kulcher. I call it the “gynocracy”:

boys will be boys, but now, that's not a normal natural condition, but a "behavior issue" to be treated with drugs. With luck and enough drugs, maybe they can be induced to be confused about which toilet to use after the gynocracy is done making men feel guilty for being men.

Yet, all that isn't what really leapt out and grabbed me in this article. Oh no! Quite the contrary!

What grabbed me was this:

A discussion among students at Oberlin High School in Oberlin, La., about a mathematical symbol led to a police investigation and a search of one of the student's homes, according to the Allen Parish Sheriff's Office.

On the afternoon of Feb. 20, detectives investigated a report of terroristic threats at the school, where they learned that a student had been completing a math problem that required drawing the square-root sign.

Students in the group began commenting that the symbol, which represents a number that when multiplied by itself equals another number, looked like a gun.

After several students made comments along those lines, another student said something the sheriff's office said could have sounded like a threat out of context.

Police searched the student's home, where they found no guns or any evidence that he had any access to guns. Authorities also wrote there was no evidence the student had any intent to commit harm. (Emphasis added)

Let that one sink in for a moment. First, can one blame a bunch of students for sitting around, in the wake of the prior week's tragic school shooting, and having guns on their mind? No, one cannot. Can one even blame the local police for (presumably) getting a search warrant to search his home for having remarked that radical signs in mathematics look like guns? Again, in the wake of the prior week's tragic deaths (and the now emerging story that the FBI was warned, but was too busy trying to prove Russian collusion with Trump to look into it), one certainly can't blame them either. But ponder that one too: all it takes now to (presumably) get a search warrant to search someone's home is for their child to merely mention the word "gun" even though there was no stated intention to cause harm.

This is Amairikuhn kulcher. And it's time to face the facts: this is what one hundred years of progressivism has produced: a generation of hypocritical, entitled, narcissistic, drugged up and dumbed down nitwits. The grand experiment, in other words, has been a complete and total failure.

The solution: as Catherine Austin Fitts has remarked on occasion, if you're not in a conspiracy, then you need to start one, and start figuring out how to take the institutions back. All of them.

See you on the flip side...

The Outlook Ain't Pretty – But Looking Up Is Great!

The Outlook Ain't Pretty – But Looking Up Is Great!

by Zen Gardner

May 20, 2013

If you're reading the "signs of the times" like any thinking person, the apparent world outlook isn't good. While phony political processes cloud the air with smoke, mirrors and idiotic political air horns, UN and foreign troops are reportedly training on American soil and massive arms and munitions buildups continue at the behest of an enemy government.

Our own.

All with no visible signs of anything being warranted, nor of a population being warned of impending disaster. Despite this obvious reality in every sphere of society the world marches on towards certain chaos.

And something very similar is transpiring in the UK, Australia and Canada, other strongholds of so-called democracy. Actually these same "enclaves" of supposedly free democratic peoples are bases of intelligent opposition to the New World Order which is exactly what is anathema to the PTBs. Just as the intelligencia was the enemy of the great communist takeovers and thus liquidated.

Take a lesson from history. Fascism's never been pretty.

Recent Signs are Troubling

This series of scandals hitting the deliberately dysfunctional Obama administration is particularly troubling as I've outlined in recent posts. Why are they allowing this spate of no doubt controlled media releases against the Obama administration? Why the apparent deliberate chaotic element at this time? There's always a reason, these "outlets" are all in cahoots with a bigger plan and we know it – and they also know many of us also know it.

It's all part of the release program, as if they're giving us a chance to catch on. Occult reference here I'll expound on later.

It's a nasty time for sure as things continue to convolute and they broadcast their various bands of disinformation.

A Media Bent on Mind Control

It bothers me big time how the media play(s) the unwitting public. While disinformation is their mainstay, I think the most effective tactic is just plain distraction. Even though troops move into place, new tactical equipment is stationed around the country and in our skies, and innocent civilians are getting accustomed to shake downs and ID checks and militarized police and actual troops in their streets, the TV plays weather news, sitcoms, sports and other major stupidity to keep the masses distracted and intoxicated.

The realization that our world is about to crumble every which way from Sunday is not on their radar for us to know – deliberately. Thinking people who catch on are marginalized more militantly by the day.

We're in a rapidly shifting psycho-political war. And they're making their move.

The Onslaught Against Truth and Humanity

Much of mankind is simply getting worn down. While a conscious sense of love and truth, right and wrong resides in every human, it has been successfully squelched to a large degree by the social engineers in their effort to split humanity into two distinct classes.

The elite rulers and the deliberately dumbed down worker class.

The middle class will be no more. Replacement elites will be groomed from amongst their own protected bloodlines and those showing potential in their engineered University hatcheries, while the genetically modified transhumans do the maintenance work on the new, geoengineered planet Terra.

Or so goes their plan. I almost hate to articulate it to fulfill their intentions.

Our Challenge

In the United States, as with anywhere, anything can happen. Being a personally armed nation due to its founding and nature, the globalist forces need to take care of that issue, either by disarming or outright incarceration and destruction. It is well within the agenda of global control to empower other nations to do the dirty work and attack Americans. It is also clearly within the scope of the dark cabal to create a private army if need be. Anything can happen in a staged martial law environment.

To not realize this is to leave yourself naively open to very intrusive factors, to say the least.

Remember: another major false flag or series of escalated events will happen. It's their "go to" tactic that always works, scaring the hell out of the majority to justify draconian measures time and again.

The whole idea is to destroy from the inside as much as possible. This is why the phony internal "terrorist" threat is now ex-military, survivalists, political dissidents, so-called "truthers" and those critical of the status quo and the like.

Remember, an outright attack is also not out of the question. Once America shows itself vulnerable due to serious internal strife we may just see something like an EMP strike, possibly convincingly blamed on China. I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but these are real possibilities.

The point is, the take-down is imminent. There's no stopping it at this point. There's way too much momentum for this not to at least be attempted. What happens then we'll just have to see.

This is not new.

History bears out how many times great powers were caving in from their own corruption and simultaneously undermined, resulting in massive pogroms to eliminate any potential opposition.

It's just better to be realistic if you're making any plans or preparations.

Apply that across the board.

Look Up!

We hold the promise of a better world. We are the better life that lies within us and expressing it brings it into reality. We are proof that this insanity is just that, an insane projection on a false screen attempting to lie and mislead an unsuspecting population of beings.

We are awake. We are aware. We get what's going on here and reject the phoney projectors. Love is our "god", Truth is our mission, kind caring and sharing is our nature.

Damn the other force. It lies and breeds fear and control. Let it shrivel up under its own contrived, constrictive force.

Keep alert. And never despair. Love is in the air!

Life is. Always was and always will be. Death of anything creative is an illusion to create fear.

Laugh in its face and enjoy the ride! We are forever and to stay!

Love always, Zen

So You've Woken Up...Now What?

So You've Woken Up...Now What?

by Zen Gardner

November 11, 2012

Many people ask about this or something similar so here's some thoughts on the subject. I don't mean to tell anyone what to do, as that's completely contrary to consciousness and conscious development, but I will share my understandings at this point and my passion for Truth and you can do what you like with it.

Question:

"What do you say to people who have woken up but can't leave the system because of family and friends?"

This and those like it pose a very broad question since we're all different and need to be led of our own convictions. However, the answer is fundamentally similar in every case.

Do what consciousness tells you.

There's really no time for fiddling around once you've found what you know to be the Truth, which is always something clearly outside the realm of what you've been indoctrinated with. It's always life altering. And if it isn't, you didn't hear correctly or it fell on deaf ears.

I don't want to be counted amongst the deaf or unresponsive. Do you?

Especially when you found out that that's exactly what perpetrates the big lie you found out about—a compliant, non-awake populace.

System Dependence is the Name of the Game

That's the trouble with the "system", it teaches dependency, hierarchy, and rote knowledge, where your choices are carefully narrowed down to "acceptable" alternatives within carefully confined parameters.

That's why people feel like fish out of water when they wake up. They never learned how to truly think freely, nor did they have the knowledge tools. Instead, most everything was reversed, scrambled, confused and filed away in seeming useless obscurity.

The result is not just a marginalization of empowering Truths into the catch-all dustbins of "conspiracy theory" or wing nut stuff, but worse yet, the system does not cultivate original thought or true personal freedom or responsibility.

The real Truth is not an option in such a controlled environment. Oh, you get smatterings of truths, but drawing awake and aware conclusions is not an option to humanity's would be Controllers.

The Wake Up Starts with a Bang – But You Have to Keep

It Going

When someone awakens to the true nature of the manipulated world we live in, as well as the vast resources at our immediate conscious fingertips, it takes some doing to fully realize what that information means, as well as the vast implications on your personal life.

It can hit hard and may need some time to be digested.

How it affects each of us individually is really a question of simply putting what we've learned into action and trusting the Universe for the consequences.

I don't think there's time for much else. In fact, there never has been.

If you know the Truth, what are you waiting for?

While many are hoping for some kind of soft-pedaling of any kind of action call, it's not a set formula. You just find out, and you react. And just that takes some doing, breaking off the rust of your True Self to animate and start to call the shots that were previously hindered by life long programming.

Stages of Development

For me the full wake up took on many stages of development, but the full blown realization of the vast extent of the manipulated lie and its fleshed out intricacies was a head splitting explosion that blew me past the pull of convention's gravity so fast I'm still grinning from ear to ear as I zip through the universe..ha!

The point there being, the wake up takes on many forms and evolves. What gives the wake up traction is commitment, putting feet to your realizations.

You think TV's bad? Turn it off. Banks are a rip off? Get out except for perhaps necessary operating funds if need be.

Trapped by the ownership of housing, “might needs”, and all kinds of dumb stuff?

Dump everything you can, if that’s your understanding. Knowing “stuff owns you” is fundamental to consciousness. We all get there, but it depends on our enthusiasm...or “spirit in us”.

How many respond to just that?

Do What You Know or Face Confusion

Until people put into action what they already know, there isn’t gonna be much more to follow for them. Just a lot of flailing about in frustration because we don’t do what we already know we should do and are looking for excuses or compromised solutions to assuage our guilty conscience and hopefully preserve our personal status quo.

Sad, but true.

That also includes getting right with people, making relationships honest, and disengaging from situations of compromise. It takes courage.

Know You Are Nobody–Yet Everybody

All this is a whole lot easier when you realize you are nobody. There’s nothing to defend.

Your old senses of self were the very strings the lying matrix played upon. Get conscious and the sirens of the system don’t affect you except peripherally.

That’s a biggie.

Conscious awareness is number one realizing and seeing through the higher level of awareness that is detached from this life’s experiences, and thus free to discern and identify without attachment what your life experience is.

Seeing through those eyes will bring tremendous peace and understanding.

Get Along But Don't Compromise

Don't fret the next steps. The universe is so vast and full of infinite possibilities there's something for everybody. Our job is to find it for ourselves and when we find it, act on it. No, it's not the "safe" way, or the "accepted" way.

At all. We do have to break free.

In reality the parasitic system has been sucking you dry and lying to you and everyone you love. You now no longer owe it any allegiance and can and should disengage any and every way you can. No guilt trip necessary. You are doing what is right.

Period.

And that is not contingent on relationships, financial security, self image concerns, or what have you.

So get any and all attachments possible out of play. Happily. You are freeing yourself from the spider's tentacles.

There's Real Peace in Commitment

When you've resolved to go ahead and "make the break" with convention and stand up for what you know is right, it leads to a new lifestyle. How do you think these wonderful websites were formed of like-minded people who found each other and decided to make an impact with videos, interviews, articles, participation in events, etc?

How were Gandhi, Martin Luther King or other world truth bearers including the present day alternative luminaries birthed from their previous lives?

Something gelled, made total sense, resonated, and they just committed. These truth enthusiasts on the internet also somehow found each other and it clicked. It's all about responding to the need and call and openly networking...true response-ability.

The Truth Glasses

I read this fantastic analogy and it's never escaped me.

Finding out the whole truth is like putting on these amazing truth glasses, much like the movie "They Live".

Here's how they work:

#1. You gotta want to put them on.

#2. You can't force someone else to put them on.

#3. Once they're on, you can't take them off.

If you've found and put on the glasses, that will make total sense. If you haven't, keep searching.

Let your heart lead you.

In the words of Lao Tsu:

At the center of your being you have the answer; you know who you are and you know what you want. – Lao Tsu
