Using the ongoing situation in Syria as an example, this particular incursion of the parasitic western powers, never mind their other psychotic maneuvers, serves as a perfect example of how the so-called powers that be are simply pissing in the wind.

It's ultimately futile.

It never succeeds in the tides of time. We just happen to be living in the immediate moment.

That the whirled can stand by idly watching this ongoing madness is amazing, if not stunning. As if there's any reason to this insanity. Yet onlookers literally entertain whatever comes at them, being boxed in by their previous and ongoing engineered mental and spiritual allegiances, however subconscious or conscious.

Daily news items are bad enough, from people being jailed for collecting their own rainwater to UN mandates for global control mechanisms, or cops shooting innocent people, or the mass media fawning over clearly satanic ritual demonstrations at major events, it's nuts.

But the global and personal implications are resounding. People feel it but can't put their finger on it because of engineered disorientation from fundamental morals and their estranged sense of truth. It's a whirled that has essentially lost its free will.

Something to seriously consider.

Yet, despite the fanfare, these imposed mechanisms will fail, being based on faulty, fear based and fully fabricated lies and deception, founded on the imposed deep seated mandate to subvert, destroy and control what's left.

A clear recipe for self immolation.

When will this cascade into its own demise? I don't know. But it can't be that far away and appears to have clearly begun this process already as evidenced by their desperation.

The funny thing is they're falling all over each other to be the first to bring on the next phase. Psychopaths in a pissing contest to be the most obedient to their masters' commands. Just amazing.

Is Anybody Paying Attention?

The Syria set up for some kind of global confrontation has been spelled out for years. Many thought Iran would be the line in the sand but it appears Russia chose Syria for making the stand which I and many others have written about, but it may yet move on. We don't know. Just that the dark-hand driven machine keeps grinding away and we are seemingly relegated to the audience position is bad enough.

Clearly noteworthy and by design.

It really doesn't matter where the line is drawn, the fact remains there's a presupposed line and a presumed confrontation with big, bad enemies. Continually.

Confrontation has been the psychotic West's technique du jour to precipitate what it wants geopolitically, as well as being a created psycho-spiritual tool in the mass mind. Construct an enemy of their “righteous” hegemony for “security and democracy” and dutifully knock it off as a threat to world stability. Then take everything you can. All for security, of course.

Same old, same old. Orwell had all this nailed in 1984.

The current reality remains that besides the ongoing NATO insanity, revved up armed, aided and abetted proxy governments are working willingly to effect and accomplish this same globalist agenda, the engineered ISIS scare being the prime example. Something to seriously think about with serious questions pending. What is the mainstream news narrative really conveying and what is the truth of the matter?

The mindwash is amazing to behold. How so many can succumb to such fabricated nonsense is dumbfounding.

Hence the Awakening

When paradigms collapse it's a good thing. Clearly disconcerting to the uninformed less conscious individual but so be it. Bring it on. The blatantly obvious psychotic US election mayhem is shaking more people up by the day, finally, and the idiotic false choice between obvious psychopaths with the reality that dark forces ultimately have their fingers on the lever anyway they want to shape it is shaking people up.

Again, finally.

People are flocking to alternative news by the minute. Never underestimate that. Information is just the beginning, but when truth resonates things happen. Mind levers click, heart sensing is affirmed, convictions are strengthened, and people slowly awaken.

This is how it starts.

People lose their fear of non-conformity and reality starts to sink in...it's a process. And when it activates big things happen. Unanswered or answerable questions arise and the vacuum for truth expands.

Expect a lot more. And let's be there to reinforce it and fill in the gaps. Wisely and lovingly.

And persistently.

It's a very hard time for most people. They haven't had a clue for a long time. Keep filling in the obvious spaces with clear truths, however disconcerting to their mass programming.

And never doubt your role in all of this. We each strengthen each other as we wake up and activate. It's a marvelous thing on so, so many levels.

Know that.

We're in this together and need each other. Let's do the right thing and help facilitate this change. It's all there for us to influence at this point.

Or any point for that matter. That's conscious awareness.

Much love, Zen
