The relentless burning of Earth's remaining forests is accelerating. Forests that are not burning are dying. While environmental conditions around the globe deteriorate on every imaginable front, official sources and corporate media are continuing to ramp up false narratives to counter justifiably growing public concern about the imploding biosphere. The September 8th installment of Global Alert News is below.

Many have long since grown fatigued from their efforts to share dire truths with those that don't want to hear it. Now, at this most critical time of the walls closing in, we need to renew our strength, our resolve and our efforts to sound the alarm. The battle to expose and halt the climate engineering insanity is the great imperative. Make your voice heard, share credible data from a credible source. We must all make every day count.
