

The Rightful Role of the Truth Warrior

It's amazing how people have been backed into a corner by this barrage of social programming and outright intimidation. People actually feel apologetic about speaking the truth when it counters the politically correct entrained mass mindset of the world today. It's not always obvious and can manifest in many subtle yet powerfully debilitating ways.

I'm in the midst of answering older sibling's responses to my understanding of America's participation in the Zionist phenomenon. I've only sent select information in the hopes of at least cracking their eyes open even a little bit as to the obvious results of this militarized American mindset and what they've been bamboozled into supporting. While we communicate freely on other subjects and our discourse is not belligerent, on this one I was met with not just the usual irrational justifications and indoctrinated responses, but there soon appeared a patronizing and condescending tone, an indication of the degree of entrenchment I was touching on.

It was as if entirely different people were suddenly speaking to me, resorting to addressing perceived underlying weaknesses in my thinking, delivery and temperament while at the same time basically reflecting the profoundly deep culture of religio-political tainted western programming. It was a perfect illustration of the tough contest many are up against and brought to mind some of the more subtle aspects of why many are often reluctant to share the naked truth.

Anticipating this kind of response is often exactly what is eating at the heart of those who are afraid to speak up – a fear of not just being countered, sometimes aggressively, but in a manner that is emotionally subversive and even subtly threatening, with the ultimate threat of being ostracized and belittled by those with whom they want to maintain a loving and peaceful relationship. It doesn't have to be relatives, it can be anyone. Even with new acquaintances this dynamic can take effect, and come on quite strongly.

If we seek to avoid or sidestep these types of reactions it's again a fear response, a fear of retribution at many levels, potentially resulting in isolation and even outright punishment through not just direct action, but such subconsciously manipulative techniques as patronizing condescension and intellectual ridicule.

It's as if being a member of the pack or herd is the prize of life. On the contrary, it's all the more time to see it for what it is and stand our ground. Truth needs no affirmation. It speaks for itself.

Truth Is Love

Telling someone the truth is the most loving thing anyone can do. Of course it needs to be done wisely so as not to give a ready excuse for holding on to their illusion. That's a clever mechanism that needs to be avoided. But there is also a time the truth hurts but still needs to be said. If it hurts, so be it. To withhold the truth from someone who is clearly in need of it is the most unloving and self serving thing any of us can do.

Let the chips fall where they may.

I've been thinking about this a lot lately, the need for all of us who have awakened to take authority in our awareness and live in it fully and boldly. It's totally contrary to everything we've been conditioned with. The collective mind is built on dependence and allegiance to imposed authority. This is nothing less than fear and submission programming.

From Pavlovian bells ringing between classes and fire and atom bomb drills as school children, to stop lights and sirens wailing in the streets and figures in uniforms, it's all conditioning. Think about those strange costumes of authority figures we were entrained to "respect" – from religious garb and battle gear to dark suits and lab coats with "degrees" behind their names – these authorities were to be implicitly trusted as well as feared and obeyed.

The conditioning runs deep. And needs to be shirked.

The result of this programming which we can see all around us is a weak, limp and spineless humanity, willing to go along with whatever program comes next, with just enough free range within their confined space to give the illusion of freedom and autonomy. Very clever, very insidious and completely debilitating.

Be Aware of Pitfalls – Entrapment, Intimidation and Assumptive Posturing

These are all mechanisms of subjugation. Devious baited traps of entangled low-level left brained arguments, all with assumptive conclusions. You'll often hear "why can't you consider both sides?" as if there's some sort of neutral ground to a life threatening situation, all in an attempt to neutralize your conviction which is contrary to theirs. Have "they" fully considered" both sides? Total hypocrisy.

This type of mind manipulation leads the unsuspecting subject into mental and social cages of seemingly logical yet conflicting conclusions, often accompanied by just plain bullying with the projected atmosphere of unquestionable authority. It's a nasty response system to these mechanisms that's been engrained into humanity, both the thinking and the unthinking. We're dealing with a very deep spiritual source of disinformation that works on the unsuspecting, the overly programmed and those who are self justifying and self serving.

All are devious responses and affirmations of severely entropic forces – mental, spiritual and physical. The need to see and wake up to these is absolutely imperative.

It happens in all walks of life. The mind weave of guilt tripping and subordination programming is admittedly slippery and surreal, but very very present. The effects are everywhere. What we witness in these usurping rulers posturing themselves as authority figures is a perfect manifestation of this form of falsely based intimidation which trickles down through society right into interpersonal relationships.

It's taught and reinforced from birth because it's unnatural and must be learned and is essential to the control system. It's an imposed false paradigm born in lies and perpetrated by lies. It's literally an illusion perpetrated by nothing but innuendo, continued reinforcement, and backed by brute force, the extension of which is their hierarchy of control supported by a mechanized policing military machine. Again, this is a woefully misused mimic of the true power of loving empowerment, a false projection in this 3-D reality play we're all playing a part in.

We are an intrinsic element of the true Authority and it's time we took our rightful place.

Awaken and Take Authority

We need to be proactive and confidently assertive in our our convictions. We cannot waver or bend to these influences, however complex, corrosive or intimidating they may be. Ours is to defy the lie, denounce the liars, expose the agenda, and march on in full confidence in the Truth and freedoms we've been endowed with. Forget national altruism and the futile law-riddlen political and religious maze, ours is to stand as parts of the creative universal Source Itself – autonomous, free thinking, creative and imaginative agents of love and positive change.

We have far greater and more powerful tools, even weapons, at our disposal than we realize. When thinking about this I was reminded of the light saber we saw popularized in the Star Wars films. My problem with that imagery is that the dark side has an equally powerful light weapon. That's not true. Their sabers should have had a black beam. There's power there, but only operable in dark places. It cannot stand up to the power of light and would easily be cut to shreds by the wand of Truth and Light.

We have such a weapon. If you've ever seen adepts use the power of chi to literally knock people backwards, as well as wonderfully heal, you've seen it in action. Sure, the interdimensionals have influences at their disposal we are now becoming familiar with, but they cannot affect those living in the full light of awakened truth. What arouses this truth force within us is living it and not compromising or living apologetically on the defensive, riddled with doubt about our calling or capabilities.

There's much to learn for all of us but this tremendous resource awaits our activation. And it has everything to do with taking and using the authority with which we've been endowed. A powerful example of this is the Babylon Is Fallen phenomenon that's rapidly picking up speed as people exercise their freedom from this false system by detaching from their very name, the false construct attachment we're given at birth. Very profound and worth looking into. Exercising our inherent freedom and standing in authority takes some practice, but it can be strengthened in every sphere of our daily existence.

The Time to Decide is Now. Always Now

Either you're on board or you're not. Either you're compromised and impotent and left languishing on the banks of the river of truth...or not.

The choice is ours. What we're up against has been clearly spelled out to us in this massive awakening and sharing of empowering and enlightening information we're experiencing. At that point either we utilize it, or we succumb. There's no standing still in this current. We either stand strong and forge ahead upstream or get washed over the falls in the polluted river of lies.

It's ours to decide. Empower and help change the course of now, or hide in shame, doubt and disgusting self pity.

Personally, I have no pity for the liars and those who adamantly defend the lie. They are the problem. We and the truth we bear are the solution. We must treat those who've been subverted with love, but love takes many forms, and telling and living the Truth are intrinsic to it, come what may.

And take heart. The reign of the dark forces of the Kali Yuga (or age of vice) is over. What we're witnessing is its death throes. The cycle is over and this is our time to come forth.

Let's help these dark minions on their way to oblivion in style. When we disconnect, disengage and do not comply but rather stand confidently and boldly in the truth we know and move forward proactively, their fabrication of deceit will shred, shatter and fall to our feet.

My light saber's turned on and burning furiously. How's yours? It simply awaits activation.

It's time to awaken the weapons of loving truth – and wield them with full authority.

Much love, Zen
