

The Still Unsolved Mystery of the Eugene Signal

Melissa edited this in-depth, fascinating and ultimately horrifying investigative piece after Melissa and Aaron Dykes had the chance to visit the West Coast and see Eugene, OR for themselves, the site of verifiable human experimentation by the powers that be... and a story that was never revealed to the public.

Further down the road, they also saw the VLF Navy site in Dixon, CA where this mystery signal was traced and attributed to. Today, it is the site of a number experimentation antennas arrays, including at least two GWEN towers – and, alarmingly, the home of a migrant farmer community who live in close proximity to this powerful and little understood equipment in Dixon. To see these sites was a chilling experience for sure.

Why exactly was this particular electromagnetic signal hovering over and saturating this particular town for a period of several years? How does it connect to certain military and political objectives? What are the ultimate implications – for both the residents of this particular area, and for the peoples of the world in general?

The larger truth goes much, much deeper, indeed, and connects with research and themes of their film, ‘The Minds of Men’.
