

The Zen Of Now – Perception Matters

by Gillian Grannum, Ph.D.

Given the volume of emails I'm receiving I've chosen to address my decision to support Zen publicly.

Yes. I'm aware of the articles discrediting Zen. I choose to see those deeply disturbing articles that strip a human down for his past and not his present choices as far less valuable to humanity than the content of the articles I've published from Zen.

Of course if you can provide me with proof that he is still a member of "The Family" and is actively engaged in pedophilia – an act he clearly states he has never committed – then my continued posting of his material is both unacceptable and wrong. But without proof of current reprehensible acts I choose to perceive the light Zen has helped spread with his deeply thoughtful and uplifting articles as more valuable to humanity than the dark 3D matrix agenda that wants him silenced, scorned, shamed and discredited.

As far as I can tell part of Zen's life challenges and personal growth consisted of joining a cult. Cult brain-washing and indoctrination turned him into a very slow Truth Perceiver/Awakened Being. By his own admission it took him 27 years to grow spiritually strong enough to see the truth and break away.

He's castigated for being a leader of the cult and turning a blind eye to pedophilia and other cult crimes. Are those cult activities worthy and wholesome? Of course not. But guess what? He found the strength and courage to break free and he has used his life since then in constructive, uplifting pursuits.

It seems to me the Christ had some instructive advice concerning our penchant for condemnation.

“And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst, 4They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. 5Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou? 6This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not. 7So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her. 8And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. 9And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst. 10When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee? 11She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.”

I shall be running re-posts of my favorite Zen articles for the foreseeable future. I do this so that you can judge for yourself Zen’s character as expressed through his content. Judge THAT if you must judge something.

These are times when one must choose for oneself how to react to information. These are times to use great discernment.

For only the second time since I have had this blog the comments section will be closed. Consider my decision an act of self preservation from the ugly, ugly energies that simply want to tear down and destroy, maul and make tawdry all that was once perceived as very good.

And guess what? It still is.

Thank you.

Originally published on Shift Frequency. Feel free to post far and wide.

No copyright restrictions apply.